Disappearance of Col.
Raymond Robins
Still Mystery

NO TRACE IS FOUND

Chicago Newspaper Says
He Was Seen Yesterday in City

Chicago.—(P)—Col. Raymond Robins, missing prohibition and peace leader, was seen in Chicago yesterday by a friend who knew him during his former residence here, the Daily News said today.

The unnamed friend, reading of the mysterious disappearance of the New Yorker, volunteered the information at the newspaper office that he had passed Robins yesterday afternoon at the corner of State and Adams-sts in the loop.

He professed to be certain of the identity. Robins, however, seemed preoccupied and he did not interject him in the loop crowds to speak to him. The News informed said he thought Col. Robins might be here on some secret mission.

Washington.—(P)—Attorney General Mitchell said today special investigators from the prohibition bureau had been assigned to the hunt for Col. Raymond Robins, social worker and prohibitionist, on the theory that he might have been harmed by a gang of bootleggers.

Mitchell reported, however, that nothing had been found that would substantiate such a theory or give a clue to any gang that might be responsible.

Mitchell said so far nothing had been discovered that would draw the justice departments bureau of investigation into the case.

Meantime, President Hoover and members of his cabinet, several of whom were personal friends of Robins, awaited word from the federal agencies at work in the search.

Mitchell said if there was an indication that Robins had been kidnapped and transported across any state line, the bureau of investigation would enter the search.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of this bureau, said that so far it appeared that no element of ransom was involved.

"Colonel Robins seems simply to have disappeared," he added. "We have no way of knowing yet whether he has been kidnapped and taken across a state line or not."

Hoover added that although no special instructions had been issued, his men immediately would communicate anything they heard about Colonel Robins.

Secret Service Active

W. H. Moran, chief of the secret service, said his agents in New York had made some "preliminary studies at the request of some of Colonel Robins' friends." These, Moran added, were to ascertain that Robins had checked out of his New York club with the intention of going to Washington.

Moran added that the investigation in Washington had been limited simply to telephone call to a hotel to see if Robins had arrived there.

Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, said all the 188 special agents in the prohibition force had been instructed to join in the search for Robins.

"This does not mean that every single agent will be out working on the case at the same time," Woodcock told newspapermen. "But it does mean that they are to be on the lookout for any possible clues, while some of them work on the disappearance continually."

The only reason the prohibition bureau is working on the case, Woodcock said, was the possible connection between Robins' disappearance and the disappearance of Col. Robins.

Woman Sought in Mystery Suicide Of Film Executive

Police Believe She Will be Able to Help Determine Motive

San Francisco.—(P)—Dorothy Millette, possibly the woman prominently named in the Paul Bern suicide, disappeared Tuesday night from a river steamer between here and Sacramento, leaving her luggage in her cabin, police were told today by F. J. Oliva, Jr., Oakland, ticket agent for the river lines.

Whether this was the same "Dorothy Millette" named in the will of the dead motion picture executive as "my wife, Dorothy Millette," could not be definitely ascertained, but Oliva said the woman's ticket was signed with that name before she boarded the steamer.

Los Angeles.—(P)—The "other woman" in the life of Paul Bern, brilliant film studio executive and husband of blonde Jean Harlow of the screen, was sought today by police in hope she might throw some light on his suicide.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of this bureau, said that so far it appeared that no element of ransom was involved.

"Colonel Robins seems simply to have disappeared," he added. "We have no way of knowing yet whether he has been kidnapped and taken across a state line or not."

Hoover added that although no special instructions had been issued, his men immediately would communicate anything they heard about Colonel Robins.

3 Burn to Death In Plane Crash

Fourth Man Saved by Safety Belt as Ship Hits
Side of Mountain

El Paso, Texas.—(P)—Tightening of his safety belt saved George A. Davidson's life while his three companions on an airplane trip were burned to death when the ship struck the side of a mountain.

Pilot W. J. (Bryant) Robbins of the American Airways, his co-pilot, Francis W. Briggs, and Victor Ellman of St. Louis, a passenger as was Davidson, were killed. The plane, wrecked yesterday morning, was found early today by two other American Airways pilots, Ira McConaughay and Victor Miller.

Davidson, who lives in Richmond, Calif., was burned on his hands and face but suffered no serious injuries.

The searchers found him about two miles from the plane. He had stopped to build a fire because he could not find his way well in the darkness and needed warmth against the chill air of the Guadalupe mountains where the ship crashed. The mountains are about 75 miles east of El Paso.

He said he was nervous as Robbins tried to pilot the plane over the Guadalupe chain in foggy weather. As a precaution, he tightened his safety belt. When the plane hit the mountainside, the other three were thrown and probably stunned. Davidson's belt kept him in his seat and left him able to leap from the plane an instant before it took fire. Almost in a moment, the other men were burned to death before his eyes.

Heavy Gales Whip Seas in Eastern Area

Storms Originate From Tropical Disturbance
In Bahamas

BIG PROPERTY LOSS

Fear Loss of Life on Abaco
Island—Relief Ship
On Way

(By the Associated Press)

The white light between two red—warning of heavy gales at sea—burned brightly through the night along a gale-swept coast.

Storm warnings were up from Cape Hatteras to Eastport, Me., and shipping sought safe harbors as 90-mile winds thundered across the high seas. Coastal communities suffered many thousands of dollars damage as winds of lesser velocity beat along the eastern shore line before passing out to sea.

The winds were born of a tropical disturbance whose center struck the northern portion of Abaco island of the Bahamas group on Monday. Communications with Abaco have been out since, and government officials feared there may have been loss of life on the island.

A government tender, carrying doctors, nurses and medical supplies, left Nassau, Bahamas, last night for the island community.

The tropical disturbance moved northeastward through the Atlantic after roaring across the Bahamas at an 80-mile clip and was centered last night about 450 miles east of Washington and 250 miles south of Nantucket.

The edges of the storm struck the New England coast yesterday and during the night coastal shipping was held in New England ports from Block Island, R. I., to Eastport, Me.

Steamers plying between New Bedford, Mass., and the islands of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard were forced to turn up at their docks as early as noon yesterday. Excursion boats along the Massachusetts coast turned back after nosing out of sheltered harbors.

Boats on Beaches

A 60-mile wind pelted scores of pleasure craft on the beaches of Massachusetts' south shore, and Cape Cod and shell fishermen lost thousands of dollars as scallops were thrown up on the beaches and lobster traps were torn from their moorings to be broken in the surf.

The storm was at its worst ashore along Cape Cod. Tides there reached record heights and the wind reached a velocity that old cape fishermen haven't experienced for a score of years. The coast guard station at Chatham on Cape Cod reported a wind velocity of 65 miles an hour with the wind increasing as the temperature dropped sharply.

Beach cottages were in danger of being swept away in many towns along the cape and scores of communities were without light or telephone service during the height of the gale.

At Woods Hole, Cape Cod, the barometer was reported to have fallen off 5½ points in an hour and a half, an almost unprecedented drop, and the storm was raging with a fury that is rare outside the tropics.

From the high seas, the Canadian steamship Prince Henry, bound from Bermuda to Boston, radioed she hove to off Cape Hatteras in a 90-mile wind but that she was in no danger. The Prince Henry was due in Boston early today with 132 passengers, but there was little likelihood of her arriving before dark.

Another ship of the same line, the Lady Hawkins, made Boston from Bermuda late last night with a lead of seasick passengers, whose discomfiture was laid to a 70-mile storm encountered off Nantucket.

Treasury Is Silent on German Debt Situation

Washington.—(P)—Silence met recurring reports at the treasury today that Germany had formally notified this government she would be unable to meet the Sept. 30 payments on the cost of the army of occupation and mixed claims.

Secretary Mills declined to discuss the reports before attending the cabinet meeting at the White House. He promised, however, to talk about it later in the day. A statement which he had planned to issue last night was postponed.

Germany is due to pay $3,050,000 reichsmarks on Sept. 30 of which 20,400,000 are for settlement of mixed claims and 12,650,000 for the installment on the army of occupation. Postponement would be automatic upon notification.

Father Sought in Death
Of His Son in New York

New York.—(P)—Although he was found by his mother with his wrists slashed, an examination of the body of 6-year-old William Guren Tubbs today revealed he had died from some form of chemical poisoning, probably before his wrists were slashed.

A police alarm was sent out for the boy's father, William Henry Joseph Tubbs, who disappeared from the house, in Flushing, Queens, shortly before the child's body was found.

A medical examiner's report, however, indicated death might have been accidental. The boy's mother told police she had rubbed him with alcohol last night, and the medical examiner advanced the theory he might have died from the fumes.

The last two years of his life were spent in retirement.

Farm Bureau Asks Special Session to Force Price Boost

Chicago.—(P)—The American Farm Bureau federation today asked governors of Iowa and South Dakota to consider requesting the call of a special session of congress to raise prices on farm products and to delay foreclosures of farm property.

The telegraphic appeal of the federation's directors' signed by President Edward A. O'Neal, went to Gov. Dan Turner of Iowa, and Gov. Warren E. Green of South Dakota at Sioux City, Iowa, where they were to confer on the problems raised by the farmer's holiday movement in Iowa.

The telegraphic appeal of the federation's directors' signed by President Edward A. O'Neal, went to Gov. Dan Turner of Iowa, and Gov. Warren E. Green of South Dakota at Sioux City, Iowa, where they were to confer on the problems raised by the farmer's holiday movement in Iowa.

"We urge you governors careful consideration of the advisability of requesting the call of a special session of congress to deal immediately with all important question with the one thought in mind of raising farm price levels to a profitable basis," the telegram read, and pending such improvement to seek constructive legislation having for its purpose the delay of foreclosures upon farm property until such time as the farmers' income can be restored to a basis that will enable him to make payment upon farm debts."

The conferees individually avoided disclosing before the parley their points of view concerning the plans to be brought up, but unanimously expressed the belief that something of permanent value would come of their deliberations.

This morning's preliminary meeting was closed to the public. The conferees implied, however, that routine matters would be considered and the plan of attack on the farm problem would be outlined.

Present for the initial session were Ira Mitchell of Oklahoma, personal representative of Governor Murray of Oklahoma; Governors Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota; George Shafer of North Dakota; Dan Turner of Iowa, and Green of South Dakota. T. S. Allen of Lincoln represented Governor Bryan of Nebraska, and L. T. Oldroyd of Cheyenne, represented Wyoming. E. H. Hanefeld of Columbus, was Ohio's delegate. E. E. Kennedy of Kankakee, Ill., represented Governor Emmerson.

Governor Turner conferred this morning with Sioux City politicians. Others conferred among themselves about individual plans to be presented. Representatives of farm and marketing organizations were numerous. They said they had proposals to present.

Turner Is Silent

Turner refused to express an opinion on the matter, saying that he preferred to await expressions of the stands of the other conferees. It was indicated, however, that his interests lay in matters on which he has previously expressed his point of view, including the equalization fee proposal.

While the governors were meeting, hundreds of members of the Farmers Holiday association in this and nearby states were congregating for a parade.

It was the association's strike for higher farm prices that led to the state executives' deliberations.

Governor Olson declared to newspapermen before the session that he was interested in the development of cooperative marketing. He added that the non-selling campaign was characterized by the conservatism of the communities in which it had been most pronounced, and the willingness to cooperate farmers groups showed.

Dell Wills, of Tolna, N. D., a leader in the movement to hold wheat for $1 a bushel, was present. He said he would present his plan to the governors and indicated that he would seek its extension.

The small second floor office of the justice was filled with a crowd which streamed down the stairway and overflowed into the street in such number as to block traffic. Curious persons craned their necks eagerly to get a glimpse of the defendants as they were led up the stairway, chained to a deputy sheriff. Many relatives and friends of the Kenosha men were in the crowd.

Another ship of the same line, the Lady Hawkins, made Boston from Bermuda late last night with a lead of seasick passengers, whose discomfiture was laid to a 70-mile storm encountered off Nantucket.

Report Bolivian Army
Opens Major Offensive

Asuncion, Paraguay.—(P)—There were indications today that Bolivian troops operating against Paraguay in the Gran Chaco had launched a major offensive after a period of comparative inaction.

An official statement here said a strong Bolivian column had advanced from Fort Boqueron against Pozo Valencia after a heavy artillery bombardment.

There were attacks at other points also, the announcement said.

This morning a Bolivian radio dispatch reported here said Bolivian troops had captured Fort Rojas Silva.

Funeral Rites Held For Famous Indian Leader

Macy, Neb.—(P)—Francis LaFlesche, Indian leader whose life spanned the gulf between birth in a prairie tepee to national distinction as an ethnologist and recorder of the vanishing culture of his people, was buried here last night after the traditional death feast of his tribe had been followed by Masonic lodge rites. He died Monday night at the home of a brother near here.

LaFlesche, son of the last chief of the Omaha Indian tribe, was born 75 years ago in a tepee on the Indian reservation in northwestern Nebraska. As a boy he lived in the aboriginal way and at the age of 15 was acting as a runner to locate herds of buffalo. He traveled 100 miles in 18 hours to locate his first herd.

Jap Advisors Are Favored In Manchuria

League Inquiry Commission Recommends Continuation of Influence

Tokio.—Continuation of the Japanese influence in Manchuria, in an advisory capacity, has been recommended by the league of nations inquiry commission in its report to the league, official sources here said today.

The information, they said, came from Japanese representatives at Peiping, where the report was signed last week.

These advices, which contained a purported summary of the commission's findings, said, however, the report recommended an arrangement recognizing China's sovereignty in Manchuria but establishing the autonomy of the territory under Japanese advisors.

This, it said, should be worked out by negotiation between China and Japan, with representatives of Manchuria and observers representing the league.

The report of the commission was sent to Geneva last week without being published. Arrangements were made, Lord Lytton, the chairman, said at the time, for publication simultaneously at Geneva, Nanking and Tokio later this month.

The purported summary received here quoted one member of the commission as saying in effect that Japan "won almost every point" in the finding as finally framed and that it was revised several times to take into consideration the Japanese contentions.

The foreign office spokesman here said today, however, that Japan's part of the government of Manchukuo next week would be her answer to any proposals to restore Chinese sovereignty in Manchuria.

The foreign office instructed its representatives at Geneva to ask that publication of the report be delayed until Japan could study it and prepare a reply and some observations.

If this request is accepted by the league it would mean publication would not be likely before late October. The foreign office said the study would require from four to six weeks.

According to the purported summary, the commission's recommendation also included complete demilitarization of Manchuria and the establishment of a native police force under foreign supervision.

A proviso was attached, the report said, that should the situation change in important respects between the framing of the findings and the league's study of them proper consideration should be given to it.

This was interpreted as referring to the imminent recognition of the independence of Manchuria by Japan in which Japan is expected to declare that any constitution of China's sovereignty in Manchuria would be unacceptable to her.

National Funeral Directors to Meet

Wisconsin Men to Enter- tain Association at Milwaukee

Wisconsin funeral directors will entertain the fifty-first annual convention of the National Funeral Directors' association the week of Sept. 28, in the municipal auditorium in Milwaukee. It is expected that 2,500 funeral directors from all over the United States will attend.

George E. Johnson of the Wic- hmann Funeral home of this city, second vice president of the Wisconsin association, is a member of the reception committee planning for the entertainment of the visitors.

He will officially represent the Appleton morticians at the convention, and probably all funeral directors in the city will attend.

This will be the first convention of the national association to be held in Wisconsin since 1913, when the thirty-second annual meeting was held in Milwaukee. Both the Wisconsin association and the national group are starting their fifty-first year, the national being organized in Rochester, N. Y., in June, 1881, and the Wisconsin association organizing the fall of the same year in Milwaukee.

Democratic Rally at Little Chute Monday

The third of a series of political rallies in the county in behalf of the Democratic slate of candidates for county, state and national offices, will be held at 8 o'clock next Monday evening in front of the village hall at Little Chute, according to Stephen D. Balliet, chairman of the Outagamie County Democratic committee. James Hughes, DePere, Democratic candidate for congress from the eighth district, will be the principal speaker aid Mr. Balliet will preside. Candidates for county offices on the Democratic ticket will attend the meeting. The committee already has sponsored meetings in Kimberly, Appleton and Kaukauna.

Three Arrested for Parking Too Long

Two Appletonians and one driver from Menasha were arrested yesterday on charges of violating parking restrictions on College- ave and adjoining business streets. They are John M. Yonan, Menasha; Ross R. Cannon, 203 N. Lawe- st, and Henry Staeid, 1526 N. Alvin- st. The three men were arrested by Officer Edward Court. Cannon and Cannon both paid fines and costs before Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court this morning.

STEALS MILK FOR SONS; KILLED

Law Enforcement Stand Outlined In Kohler Speech

Candidate Emphasizes Budget and Securities Laws of State

Fond du Lac.—(P)—Former Gov. Walter J. Kohler, speaking here last night in his campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, assured his audience that Wisconsin laws will be conscientiously and zealously enforced if he is re-elected to the office of chief executive.

"A governor who does not enforce the law to the utmost and with every means at his command is unfaithful to his oath of office and is himself a law-breaker, flaunting the very constitution which has designated him as the chief executive," Kohler said.

The former governor said he would insist upon enforcement of a budget law which requires an annual popular report on the state's financial operations and also pledged himself to see that the securities laws of the state are properly enforced.

Since Fond du Lac is one of the state's largest railroad centers, Kohler reviewed his record on labor and railroad legislation and said he would match it against that of any governor of Wisconsin. He recalled that during his term as governor he signed the full crew bill and the bill which outlawed "yellow dog" contracts.

"I want you railroad men to consider," he said, "that the freight bill of the Kohler company for one year has been more than $2,000,000. That should prove to you that I share in the railroad man's interests."

Kohler also declared that if the Chevrolet Motor company had continued to operate its two Janesville plants on a 40-hour a week basis it would have provided more employment in one year than the entire LaFollette roller coaster program had provided in 17 months."

DAHL HITS TAXES

Bloomer.—(P)—Harry M. Dahl, candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor said in an address here that thousands of owners of small businesses in Wisconsin will be forced to the wall unless the LaFollette administration is halted in its policy of burdening state industries with taxes.

Discussing the farm problem, Dahl said that no one has a cure for the farmer's difficulties, but that some plan could be followed to help him. He said the Progressives have always posed as being friends of the farmers but they have done nothing that governments of neighboring states have not done at lower costs.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Waukesha.—(P)—Gov. Philip F. LaFollette told an audience in Cutler park here last night that in every instance where public ownership of utilities has been given a fair and practical trial it has produced better service at cheaper rates.

Among cities cited by the governor as examples of successful management of municipal power utilities were Two Rivers, Manitowoc, Waupun and Kaukauna in Wisconsin and Springfield, Ill.

The governor criticized political and propaganda activities of the utilities and methods he said they used in their efforts to make the public mind unfriendly to public competition. He said the power interests are fighting public ownership with all the resources available.

"The Progressives in this state have been fighting to give Wisconsin what Ontario has had for years," he said. "During the present administration a far-reaching power program has been undertaken to reduce costs to consumers and regain control of our national resources. Every inch of progress has been fought by the stalwarts. They totally ignore the power issue in their platform this year, but their alignment with the power trust plainly indicates on what side of the fence they stand."

In their official doctrine as to how to end prohibition the two parties are not now far apart. They are agreed that national prohibition by constitutional mandate shall be repealed. They are agreed that national prohibition by statute of Congress shall not in future be permitted. They are agreed that any state shall be free to legalize liquor if it wishes. They are agreed that the Federal power shall be employed to protect states which may desire to prohibit liquor. Thus they are in complete agreement that the whole system of the Eighteenth Amendment should be abolished. For the Eighteenth Amendment prohibits absolutely and both parties now say that any state should be able to legalize liquor.

What then remains in dispute? Only this: the Republicans desire to vest in Congress the power to prevent the return of the "saloon" whereas the Democrats wish to vest this power in the states. It should be noted, however, that on this point the President differs from his own platform. Mr. Hoover advocates "absolute guarantees in the Constitution" against the return of the "saloon," whereas the platform proposes merely that Congress "retain . . . the power to preserve" the alleged gains of the Eighteenth Amendment in abolishing the saloon. The difference is important. The President's personal policy is wiser than he is. It advocates merely a grant of power, and is, therefore, not inherently objectionable from the point of view of the integrity of the Constitution.

I do not see how any one who understands the lessons of the Eighteenth Amendment, most particularly how dangerous it is to make policy inflexible by constitutional fiat, can possibly accept the President's personal position. On the other hand, a very respectable case can be made for the principle

Reach Half-Way Mark In County Paving Job

Paving of Highway 54, between Shiocton and Seymour, a distance of about 13½ miles, has been more than half completed, according to F. R. Appleton, highway commissioner. The road was completed this week from Shiocton to Black Creek, a distance of seven miles, and it is already opened to traffic. Work on the balance of the highway, from Black Creek to Seymour, about 6½ miles, is to start at once, Mr. Appleton said. Crushed stone for the base of the road is being furnished by E. J. Murphy, town of Freedom, and the tar for the surfacing is furnished by the Barrett company of Chicago. The work is being done by county workmen under Mr. Appleton. The cost of the entire project will be approximately $85,000 and funds are furnished by the state.

City's Street Building Open For Inspection

Department Holds Formal Opening Tomorrow And Sunday

Painted and cleaned until it looks like a huge tabernacle instead of quarters for machinery, oil, brooms and tools, the city's new street department building at the corner of W. Spencer and S. Story-sts. is ready to meet the public eye. The formal opening will be held Saturday afternoon and evening, and all day Sunday, and all citizens of Appleton are urged to inspect it on these two days.

The main building, 78 by 360 feet, is of steel concrete and brick. The west building, 60 by 290 feet, is covered with corrugated iron. The floor of the main building is concrete covered with creosote blocks, while mother earth serves as a floor in the west building, which is used mainly for dead storage, this is, the storage of the machinery and materials that was left outside in the yards when the street department occupied the fairground building.

The new 12,000 gallon gasoline tank is buried in the north end of the west building, and the pump house, used to pump gasoline from the railroad car to the tank, is located just outside the north end of the building.

"This country is not immune from destruction. If we keep on as we are, we will solve these problems intelligently and we will be pleased if we are creating Communists at the rate that mosquitoes are being bred."

The Associated Press quoted Mr. Gilberts as follows:

"This country is not immune from destruction. If we keep on as we are, we will solve these problems intelligently and we will be pleased if we are creating Communists at the rate that mosquitoes are being bred."

Safeguard Children,

Motorists Warned

The opening of school this week inspires an appeal from officials of automobile associations that motorists make every effort to protect the school children as they go back and forth between their homes and school.

The return of children to school creates new traffic hazards for which automobiles must be prepared, and motorists are challenged to be particularly cautious. With the installation of the stop-and-go sign on Wisconsin-ave, fast traffic on this street, which last year seriously endangered the lives of children from St. Therese, Franklin and Roosevelt schools, is under better control, but there are many more streets in the city where reckless driving might result in injury to dozens of youngsters as they leave school. Conscientious care on the part of the individual

Cub leaders will be divided into

Registration will open Saturday three groups, one discussing the afternoon, Sept. 17, at which time there also will be organization of schools, assignment to quarters, and an optional tour of the training station. General sessions of the school will open at 4 o'clock after brief greetings by national and regional scout officials.

The sea scout school will be organized into ships and crews. There will be a talk on the "Seven points in the psychology of young men," followed by a discussion.

The cub school meeting will feature plans for 1933, experiences to date and development of a program.

After the evening meal the sea scout group will hear about new methods in game of sea scouting; the ship, the officers' and the crew program; the sea scout program ashore and will close with a discussion.

Registration will open Saturday three groups, one discussing the den chief and his program; another cubbing and council administration; and the third how cubbing meets the needs of the younger boy. Following there will be a general cub session on things the cub can do.

The evening will close with a joint session for all persons attending the school.

Sunday the sea scout school will hold a general discussion meeting and among other things talk about elements in the sea scout program which influence character. Cub school will discuss the cub achievement program and developing the den program.

Church services also are scheduled, and the sea scout morning session will close with proven plans for putting sea scouting across in the local council. Cub school will talk over development of the pack and its program.

The afternoon sea scout school will consist of sectional instructional discussion groups for sea scout committee members, ship committee members and council members; skippers and mates; prospective skippers and mates; and scout executives. There also will be a demonstration ships' meeting staged by Great Lakes sea scout ship.

Cub school will close with a general session dealing with the experiences of the various cub leaders in 10 region seven councils.

The last meeting at 4 o'clock will be a joint affair.

Entire State Interested in Products Week

Agriculture and Industry Expected to Benefit By Displays

Wisconsin Products Week, to be observed by Appleton and the rest of the state during the week Sept. 25 to Oct. 1, is intended to draw together those groups which benefit from agriculture and industry and to improve the employment situation in the state. It has the whole hearted support of all business leaders in Wisconsin.

Appleton has planned industrial and agriculture products displays that will be shown in many retail windows during the period.

The advantage of crop organization insofar as sales at prices profitable to farmers is concerned, will be demonstrated in a measure by the Consolidated State Potato Show and Wisconsin Potato Field Day at Rice Lake, Sept. 20 to 23. The exhibits will be restricted to actual grades and commercial packs, but arrangements have been completed with growers, shippers and manufacturers for the installation of equipment for handling potatoes on a car basis, according to J. G. Milward, General Secretary and Manager of the Wisconsin Potato Growers' Association. The Association is sponsoring the event which happens to tie in with Wisconsin Products Week, as to dates and purpose. Production of this important Wisconsin crop with a view to the best marketing will be emphasized in the Rice Lake region.

That business men throughout Wisconsin are straining to work with agricultural leaders by placing buying power both in agricultural circles and among industrial workers is evidence by the flow of comments regarding the purpose and possibilities of Wisconsin Products Week.

"It should emphasize to the people of Wisconsin the complete interdependence of industry and agriculture," says Max E. Friedmann, vice president of Ed Schuster and Co., Inc., Milwaukee. "It should dramatically illustrate that increased prosperity for those who gain their livelihood through work in factories, means increased prosperity on the farm, and vice versa—that Wisconsin, a state of quality producers, both on farms and in cities—requires the close and intelligent cooperation of each with the other."

Deplores Strife

"As a corollary, this week should emphasize," this merchant points out, "that class strife—economic, social or political—hampers and retards, and that unjust taxation impedes and destroys. Properly staged, Wisconsin Products Week should tend to make for clearer and more sound thinking about these subjects which are uppermost in the minds of all thinking citizens, and if it does, the effort made will certainly be justified."

Mr. Friedmann's view is quite like that of scores of others. For example William C. Coleman, of the Bucyrus-Erie Company of South Milwaukee says:

"It is an undoubted fact that very few of us think or know about the products of our own state. If this attitude of mind could be changed, it would result in a more complete realization of the interdependence of agriculture, commerce and industry in Wisconsin."

"In times of depression or in times of normal prosperity, our principal obligation to insure recovery or continuance is to promote in every possible way the interests of those who are nearest to us, geographically speaking."

"In doing this we promote a community interest in common objective which builds up a sound foundation for the promotion of the general good not only of the state but of the country and of the world generally."

"If this reasoning is correct, there is no work which could be of greater value and benefit to the people of the State of Wisconsin than such an activity which is known as Wisconsin Products Week and which is being sponsored by the State Chamber of Commerce."

Paper Manufacturer

"Wisconsin Products Week, sponsored by the State Chamber of Commerce should receive the commendation of all Wisconsin citizens. The most effective presentation of this idea of Wisconsin products for Wisconsin that I can present has a personal slant to it," writes A. C. Gilbert of Menasha.

"I am a manufacturer of high grade bond and ledger papers. Every day over my desk pass many letterheads from Wisconsin corporations. It is very disturbing to see that they are using paper very frequently made in other states. The company with which I am connected does advertising through Wisconsin printers and consumers. At any rate any consumer could specify that the paper of his letterhead must be made in Wisconsin. If this were true there would certainly be more business in Wisconsin for the Wisconsin manufacturer of paper. The men who work in our mill would be better customers of the merchants and the farmers."

"This is a personal illustration of the advantage of the Wisconsin Products Week, and can be repeated on every side by every manufacturer of any commodity in the state. Buy a product made in Wisconsin, not only for the benefit of the Wisconsin manufacturer but for the benefit of the Wisconsin merchant and farmer."

pearance and violations of the prohibition act.

Fears of violence were expressed by Mrs. Robins.

Her statement in Maine that Robins may have been kidnapped or killed by "Florida bootleggers" spurred official inquiries in both New York, where Robins was last seen Saturday, and in Washington. Capital police, however, had no indication of his arrival here.

Dr. Fred B. Smith, a New York friend of the missing man, who also was a noted social economist, talked with the White House after Mrs. Robins' statement and reported the president was "quite worried."

Personally, however, Smith said he felt Mrs. Robins "may be over-anxious." She had told of many threats on her husband's life for his active work in behalf of constitutional prohibition and against liquor violators.

"Colonel Robins is a lone wolf," Smith said. "When he wants to learn something, to dig up something, it occasionally happens that he will go off without telling anyone and he goes it alone until he finds what he wants."

"Threats against his life never cease him." He just laughs at them."

"But," he added, "of course, it does seem unusual that he should break an engagement with the president."

Last Seen Saturday

Robins was last seen at the City club in New York at a time fixed by employees at between 4:50 and 5:00 p. m. on Saturday. He had checked out, leaving the Dodge hotel in Washington as a forwarding address. This hotel, however, said Robins had made no reservation and had not been there. His baggage was located today in the City club check room.

Among the Appleton boys and leaders who plan to attend were Joseph Koffend, Arthur Remley, Paul Cast, Judson Rosebush, Beverly Grunert, William Munchow, Jack Feavel, Lloyd Cooke, Alden Hensel, Sidney Cotton, Carl Engler, Harold Haugen and C. C. Bailey. Three of four other youths were undecided to attend.

A nominal fee is charged for all expenses of the two-day period starting this afternoon and ending Sunday noon. This fee covers everything including meals, board, and athletic expenses such as rent for horses and boats. It is $1.50.

The initial gathering will be held Friday evening at 6 p. m. After this a get-together meeting will be held. This will give them a chance to get acquainted with each other. Following will be a discussion of the plans for the succeeding two days.

Jack Gerrelson, Green Bay, has been appointed Officer of the Day for Saturday. Under his direction a password meeting will be held in the morning, with A. F. Grimm, Green Bay, in charge. After this discussion session will be held taking up the problems centering around the interests of high school students in Y work. The afternoon will be devoted to recreations such as horse-back riding, baseball, boating or swimming.

Mr. Grimm will again conduct a password meeting Sunday morning. Franklin H. Brown on the central region office of the Y will also be present to assist in the group work. Saturday evening a stunt program will be held.

Nelson Speaks to Pulaski Audience

Charles C. Nelson, Appleton, candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman from the eighth district, spoke last night at a rally at Pulaski, Brown-co. The Disabled War Veterans five and dragoon corps from Green Bay attended the meeting and paraded.

The talk was given at the high school auditorium and about 350 persons were present. Following the auditorium meeting Mr. Nelson was guest at an informal meeting of war veterans at a Pulaski hall.

No Dead Dogs Wanted At Old Street Grounds

Theodore Albrecht, street commissioner, is thinking of erecting a sign, "No dead dogs allowed" at the old street department grounds. Since the removal of the street department to the new barns on the corner of Spencer and Story-sts, there no longer is anyone at the fairgrounds to take charge of the caskets delivered there. If they are brought to the new location arrangements will be made with the rendering company to call for them.

Farmers Start Repair Work on Homes, Barns

With most of their regular farm work completed for the fall, several farmers in the town of Grand Chute and town of Center have turned to the remodeling and repairing of their homes and farm buildings, and the erection of new structures.

Republicans Get $150 From Charles S. Boyd

Notice has been filed with John E. Hantschel, county clerk, that Charles S. Boyd has subscribed $150 to the Republican party in Outagamie-co. Mr. Boyd is president and treasurer of the Appleton Coated Paper company.

Department to Issue Special Webster Stamp

Postmasters throughout the United States are being informed that arrangements are being made by the U. S. Postal department to issue a special postage stamp to mark the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the birth of Daniel Webster, which is being celebrated this year.

The stamp is the same size as the regular issue, and will be of three-cent denomination. It will be printed in purple and the central subject will be a full face likeness of Daniel Webster, reproduced from a marble bust.

Stamp collectors desiring first-day cancellations may send a limited supply of addressed covers, not to exceed a total of 25, to the postmaster at Exeter, Franklin and Hanover, and the department says.

Experiment Farm Plans Field Day

State Farmers Asked to Gather at Madison Saturday, Sept. 17

Wisconsin farmers have been asked to gather at the university experimental farm near Madison on Saturday, Sept. 17, for a farmer's field day program under direction of the state department. A forenoon and a noon program is being planned, and there will be a basket picnic lunch on the farm lawn shortly before noon.

County agricultural committees have been invited to attend the field day so that they may learn of programs that can be adopted in their respective communities.

The day's program will open at 9 o'clock with a report of investigations in tobacco curing by James Johnson. There also will be a farm question clinic in a big tent on the farm lawn. At 10 o'clock inspection of contagious abortion experiments, under direction of Dr. B. A. Beach and G. C. Humphrey, is scheduled. There also will be an inspection of dry season pasture experiments at the same time.

The afternoon program will open at 12:30 with a talk, "Grow Our Own," by President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin. He will be introduced by Dean Chris Christensen. Three programs are scheduled to begin at 1:30. They are a discussion of home grown poultry rations and suggestions for 1933 by James G. Halpin and associates; inspection of cornbreeding work and the production of high yielding hybrids; and corn growers' problems.

At 4 o'clock there will be an inspection of fertilizer trials with hybrid corn and seed production fields where hybrid corn is being produced.

The day's program will close at 4:30.

Local Showers Are Forecast Tonight

Local showers or thunderstorms can be expected in Appleton and vicinity tonight or Saturday in view of the weather forecast. Tonight also will be slightly warmer but Saturday it will be cooler as the winds again become variable.

Late summer weather continued yesterday and last night and again held sway today. The mercury last night slipped down to 55 but at noon today had climbed back to 78 degrees.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Application for a marriage license has been made to John E. Hantschel, county clerk, by Emro H. Mueller, Appleton, and Helen Bloedorn, Black Creek.

chairman of the Progressive national convention.

Robins was an active worker with the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. During the war he was made a Lieutenant colonel in the army and placed in command of the American Red Cross mission in Russia, serving in that capacity from November, 1917, to May, 1918.

It was while in Russia that he met Gumberg who served as his secretary and returned with him to this country. Robins was a member of the executive committee of the Republican national committee from 1920 to 1924.

Recently, he has been actively associated with the Allied Forces for Prohibition headed by Dr. Daniel A. Poling. He served on the "flying squadron" making nation-wide speaking tours.

At his Brooksville home he has been active against liquor violators.

Recently, he donated a 2,200 acre estate to the federal government for a farm experiment station with the proviso that he and his wife would be allowed to live there for life.

Robins also is widely known for his interest in the outlawry of war.

U. S. Probe Indicated

Though no official announcement was forthcoming, a Justice department investigation was indicated. Clues were few and Mrs. Robins' own inquiries had brought no tangible results.

She named Alexander Gumberg of New York, as the only person she could find who saw Robins on Saturday. Gumberg, a banker, reported that Robins had packed his bags and left the City club, apparently for Washington.

Smith said Robins had told him five weeks ago of the Florida threats against him.

"He laughed about it," Smith said. "He never sought protection. It was all a joke to him."

Mrs. Robins quoted her husband as terming the threats "something we have got to face" and said his knowledge of the menace had led him to take steps for the disposition of his property in the event of his death.

Robins is 59 years old and a native of Staten Island, New York. He was in the Klondyke gold rush in Alaska in 1898 and acquired a fortune enabling him to devote his time to social betterment work. His wife, formerly Miss Margaret Dreier, also is a well-known social worker.

Robins also is widely known for his interest in the outlawry of war.

Large Estates in Spain to be Split Up Among Workers

Assembly Gives Approval To "Agrarian Reform" Proposal

Madrid—(AP)—Spain's projected experiment in community farming and the distribution among the laboring people of large estates of the nobles and the former crown lands was approved by the national assembly today when the deputies voted upon the final chapter of the long-discussed "agrarian reform."

The measure still has to go through the formality of a final vote on the bill as a whole, which was expected to be taken later in the day.

APPLETON POST-CRESCENT

trical development of America had only well begun.

So it may be wise to cease to wonder what is in store for us and to do as a gift whatever the day brings forth for whatever our attitude, we shall be surprised.

LOOK OUT FOR YOURSELF

Readstown is the locale of Wisconsin's latest bank robbery. It is located in Vernon county. The Blue Book says that in 1930 it had a population of 546 people. The report of the commissioner of banking shows that it had one bank and that bank had a capital of $15,000, one of those enormous Wall Street concerns. In looking through the list of officers of that bank we are surprised to find the absence of Morgans and Rockefellers. There must be some skullduggery.

The state of Wisconsin cannot bother itself when thugs become so bold and defiant as to cruelly crack the cashier on the head because this big bank only carried about $2,000 in cash.

The wantonness of the attack at Readstown recalls the Menomonie, Wisconsin, affair some months back when a son of the cashier, who was taken as a hostage, was shot like a dog and dumped out on the road.

Taking hostages, as evidenced recently at the Beloit holdup, is coming into vogue again.

But we should worry. Do not the insurance companies pay the bank losses? Didn't they promptly pay the Beloit bank the $70,000 it lost? And where did the companies get the money to do this? Don't press the point to ask embarrassing questions.

If a few bank officials are murdered or crippled, Wisconsin cannot interfere in these merely personal quarrels. Let them seek individual redress. They're all big multi-millionaires anyway.

If the cashier at Readstown wants to see those who slugged him brought to account he has the privilege of personally employing detectives and trying to follow them. Certainly on that Wall Street salary of $150 a month which he gets he can easily undertake that expense.

Thugs, gangsters, cut-throats and murderers we let through, but, thank heaven, we still hold the cossacks at the borders.

AN ORDERLY UNIVERSE

The knowledge which enabled man to predict the time of the recent eclipse sinks into insignificance in meditative reflection on the event itself.

Man boasts a superior intelligence but at the same time he is the most disorderly thing in the universe. Surely, great intelligence should not beget disorder.

Man wanders chaotically through life and pauses but a moment to witness the awe-inspiring spectacle of the moon keeping its rendezvous with the sun.

There is orderliness for you, and certainty, causation and intelligence beyond comprehension.

The moon bit into the sun within one or two seconds of the predicted time—a tardiness that man has sufficient intelligence to explain.

In calculating eclipses, predictions are based on theoretical assumption that the moon is round and consequently an average diameter is used in the calculation. In fact, the edge of the moon is jagged with mountains and plains and these irregularities render accurate prediction impossible. The margin of uncertainty due to this cause is plus or minus one second, which would not seem to be of much importance in reckoning time by centuries.

Particularly is this reassuring to man who is not so certain of his own time tables. What a tragic fate he might envisage had he reason to doubt that the sun and the moon would keep their tryst on August 21, in the year 2017.

BULLETS OR BALLOTS

For the second time within two weeks a revolution has abrogated the provisional government of the republic. Army officers have taken the initiative in this new coup, and captured the leaders of the socialist junta while they were holding an executive session in the presidential palace. General Cruz, in charge of the new revolutionary faction, took possession of the war ministry building and sheltered behind the parapets and the palm trees in the park, trained machine guns and light artillery upon the palace directly opposite. The socialists and their partisans immediately sprang to arms and fortified themselves in similar fashion. A sharp encounter was threatened for several hours, but when reports began to circulate that most of the air force had aligned against the government, and that the new revolutionaries were constantly receiving reinforcements, including heavy artillery and armored cars, the socialist detachment of some thousand men surrendered to Captain Bravo, who marshalled the advance guard of the counter revolt.

The policy of the counter-revolutionaries was summarized in the ultimatum issued to the leaders of the socialist junta. This statement is to the effect that the counter movement is desired to be in all respects a bloodless revolution which is intended to establish the doctrines of socialism in Chile with every safeguard for law, tranquility, freedom and prosperity. No coercive or abnormal means will be employed to achieve these results.

That these repeated manifestations are disconcerting, if not distressing, is too obvious. Our people have the dread uncertainties of hostile engagements between opposing political tendencies in addition to the manifold difficulties incited by the critical state of industrial and commercial affairs. It is hoped that the present controversies may terminate beneficially in the selection of a neutral candidate for president, perhaps General Ibanez himself, as the Moses who will lead our country back to normal order and composure, and perhaps as well to a species of revived prosperity. In the meantime, it is gratifying to see that our military units, in supporting this or that side of changing governments, have learned to achieve their ends without the tragic interchange of shot for shot and shell for shell.—El Mercurio (Santiago, Chile).

Historically, Edison's electric light plant of 1882 marked the beginning of the electrical era which led to the industrial supremacy of the United States. Today electrical energy has such a powerful influence over all human activity, that to be deprived of its use would constitute an almost inconceivable retrogression.

As to the future, Edison himself, in spite of the vast and far-reaching programs already made, believed that the electrical development of America had only well begun.

So it may be wise to cease to wonder what is in store for us and to do as a gift whatever the day brings forth for whatever our attitude, we shall be surprised.

LOOK OUT FOR YOURSELF

Readstown is the locale of Wisconsin's latest bank robbery. It is located in Vernon county. The Blue Book says that in 1930 it had a population of 546 people. The report of the commissioner of banking shows that it had one bank and that bank had a capital of $15,000, one of those enormous Wall Street concerns. In looking through the list of officers of that bank we are surprised to find the absence of Morgans and Rockefellers. There must be some skullduggery.

The state of Wisconsin cannot bother itself when thugs become so bold and defiant as to cruelly crack the cashier on the head because this big bank only carried about $2,000 in cash.

The wantonness of the attack at Readstown recalls the Menomonie, Wisconsin, affair some months back when a son of the cashier, who was taken as a hostage, was shot like a dog and dumped out on the road.

Taking hostages, as evidenced recently at the Beloit holdup, is coming into vogue again.

But we should worry. Do not the insurance companies pay the bank losses? Didn't they promptly pay the Beloit bank the $70,000 it lost? And where did the companies get the money to do this? Don't press the point to ask embarrassing questions.

Mr. Coolidge reviews the president's effort to prevent wage-cutting. In doing so he puts his finger, we believe, upon Mr. Hoover's most forceful step in averting panic. As soon as the depression was upon us the president called in the heads of the great industries that employed tens and hundreds of thousands of men and used his influence to check any tendency to cut wages. That was an act for which we do not think Mr. Hoover has ever received the real credit to which he was entitled. It was after that for a period of two years that the president acted in a semi-bewildered manner. It was his almost negative program thereafter which is legitimately subject to political criticism. And the really constructive features which he did not bring forth until December of last year received more opposition in his own party than they did in the Democratic party. Indeed what would have become of these very proposals which have strengthened this country immeasurably and are now taking the lead in returning the essential confidence that must exist as a forerunner of the creation of a multitude of jobs were it not for Democratic leaders and of the Blaines and Brookharts?

Mr. Coolidge's article has the weakness of partisanship. No writer of the history of the last congress who wishes to be fair can afford to be partisan.

A GOLDEN JUBILEE

The electric light and power industry has just celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of its birth. It was on September 4, 1882 that Thomas A. Edison set in operation his first generating plant to supply current to a small square mile of territory in the City of New York.

Press comment of that day noted the event as inaugurating a new and as yet untried method of illumination, while many scientific authorities predicted that it would prove utterly impractical.

Mr. Edison, however, was jubilant. He could see ahead where others were blind, but even the inventor himself could not foresee the marvelous growth and development of this new industry during the short space of fifty years.

Granges Plan Booster Night Late in Month

All County Units Expected
To Participate in Program

Outagamie-co Grange societies are planning to observe booster night which will be held by units of the order throughout the nation on Sept. 30. Granges in Outagamie-co include those at South Greenville, Black Creek, Sunny Corners, Harbor Star and Bear Creek.

"While we live in the age of increased power and speed in agriculture and in every other human endeavor, unfortunately we occasionally find 'one-horse' ideas in Grange work," L. J. Taber, national master of the agricultural organization, has stated in speaking of the booster night.

"We must increase the power of our Grange teams just as we increase the power in agriculture and in industry," he said. The support of a large group of the membership must be enlisted, and new members must be added, it was pointed out.

All Outagamie-co Granges are planning to take part in the booster night program. Each of the units will have its own event. The meetings, most likely, will be open to the public and a general invitation to attend is to be extended.

The Grange will try to reenlist and reinstate those members who have dropped in recent months and to have those who are delinquent in the payment of dues paid up.

The fiscal year of the organization ends Sept. 30 and the booster night program is being held as a need has been invaluable."

Banker Credits Girl Novelist for Saving Him from Drowning

292 Victims Monthly Claimed by Cancer

Madison—(P)—The part Miss Joan Lowell, novelist and playwright, played in rescuing him from the surf at Atlantic City Monday, was given high praise by Albert D. Graham, chairman of the board of directors of the First National bank, Baltimore, on his return here.

In a letter to the Associated Press, Mr. Graham said "no woman could have rendered more assistance, nor shown more courage than Miss Lowell.

"The cross-currents and undertow were unusually bad, but in spite of these conditions Miss Lowell did not hesitate to risk her life to save mine.

"I wish I could adequately express my gratitude for her act of bravery."

Mr. Graham was none the worse for his experience at Atlantic City. He had gone under twice when rescued.

final event and as an impetus for the new fiscal year.

Many modern youth could not harness and hitch up a team of colts, but all can understand the necessity of power, Mr. Taber stated. Masters of subordinate and Pocumtuck Granges are driving one of the most important, and what could be the most powerful, of forces in rural America.

The national master's recent message to Grange members concluded: "When you have added to the physical force of your organization, you add to your irresistible power, the knowledge, the loyalty, the solidarity, the morale of your membership. When this is done, while your name may not be in any hall of fame, your service in an hour of need has been invaluable."

Three in Gubernatorial Campaign in Minnesota

St. Paul—(P)—Minnesota's gubernatorial chair is big enough for only one man but three are trying to squeeze in, each confident the voters will seat him Nov. 4.

All three—two lawyers and a wealthy former officer of the law whose hobby is breeding blooded horses—are optimistic as the campaign gains momentum.

"My father was a Swede, my mother was a Norwegian, I married a Bohemian, and I speak Yiddish," Gov. Floyd B. Olson, seeking re-election, has remarked. "Now, how can they beat a bird like me?"

Youthful Writer in Quest for Color at Point of Revolver

Chicago—(P)—Charles Zeaman, 19, took a revolver, went searching for color, and found it.

"I haven't been able to sell my short stories," he complained to Sergeant James Fitzgerald at a police station Wednesday night.

"I can't do you any good, my boy," said the sergeant. "I haven't been paid for quite a while and if I thought I could sell any stories, I'd write them myself."

"But," replied Zeaman, "I must have color. 'Lock me up.' 'G'wan home,' ordered the officer.

Then he ducked behind his desk as Zeaman drew his revolver.

"It's all right," said Zeaman, "I took the powder out of the cartridges."

"And now," said the sergeant, "you'll get your wish." So he locked him up and notified his parents to come and get him.

Prepare for Conference Next Week

MR. WALTER KOERNER, chairman of the general committee in charge of the Women's Missionary conference for members of the Central Conference of Wisconsin district which will be held next Thursday in Appleton, announced the arrangements for the event at the meeting of Ladies Aid and Missionary society of First English Lutheran church Thursday evening in the parish hall. The general committee includes Mrs. A. Kranzusch, Mrs. H. Perske, Mrs. G. Kranzusch, Mrs. L. Albrecht, and Mrs. G. Lemke, and the registration committee consists of Mrs. C. Grem and Mrs. F. Koch.

Delegates of the local society to the conference are Mrs. C. Tornow, Mrs. C. H. Huesemann, Mrs. E. Sager, and Mrs. F. C. Reuter, and the alternates are Miss Mabel Kranzusch and Mrs. H. Junge.

The missionary topic at the meeting was "Sowers of the Seed in New Guinea" and the meeting was attended by about 55 persons. The luncheon committee included Mrs. H. Kranzusch, Mrs. G. Kranzusch, Miss Mabel Kranzusch, Mrs. Ed Kunzman, Mrs. B. Koepke, Mrs. R. Krabbe, and Mrs. M. Gehin.

Old Testament Stories were given by Miss Harriet Dean at the meeting of Sodalitas Lecta of First Baptist church Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roy Schrock, route 6, Appleton. Mrs. Harold Babb discussed current events, and Mrs. Mary Payzant led the devotional. Sixteen members were present.

A report on plans for the birthday party to be given at the Women's Union meeting on Sept. 20 was given by the committee, and arrangements were discussed for the surprise basket plan by the Evening Study group to begin about the middle of September.

The next meeting will be Oct. 13 at the home of Mrs. H. A. Downey, 1321 N. Morrison-st. Mrs. Wesley Latham will have charge of the program which will be a review of the book, "Trousers of Taffeta" by Margaret Wilson. Mrs. William Delrow will lead the devotional and Mrs. W. S. Ryan will present current events. Roll call will be answered with proverbs.

Looking into the winter activities of the church, Ladies Aid society of St. Matthew church made plans for a Christmas bazaar to be held Dec. 1 at the meeting of the society Thursday afternoon at the church. Mrs. Albert Schultz was appointed general chairman of the event and she will be assisted by Mrs. A. D. Boeler, Mrs. Henry Goerl, Mrs. B. J. Zuehlke, Mrs. George Abendroth, and Mrs. Philip Froehlke.

A social hour followed the meeting, hostesses being Mrs. Fred Hoffman, Mrs. Emil Hoffman, Mrs. Fred Hertzfeld, Mrs. August Kinko, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hoeff. Thirty-two members were present.

Discussion of the winter's work will take place at the meeting of the Argosy club of the Methodist church following a 6 o'clock dinner next Tuesday night in the Social room of the church. Miss Carol Short, president, will preside over the meeting.

The executive committee of the club met Thursday night for a picnic supper at the home of Miss Josephine Hench, 635 E. So. River-st., to complete plans for the meeting next Tuesday.

Dr. J. R. Denyes will give a lecture on the Background of the Chinese Situation at the meeting of Women's Foreign Missionary society of First Methodist church at 3 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon in the Social Union room of the church. Special business will be transacted as this will be the first meeting for the fall.

The missionary tea will be served at 6 o'clock with Mrs. H. F. Heckert as chairman of the committee.

A meeting of the Olive Branch, Junior Walther League will be held at 7:30 Friday night at the church. New members will be admitted at this time, and games will be played and refreshments served.

Officers of the branch are Vivian Kasten, president; Clarence Ehlike, vice president; Rosalyn Rachow, secretary; Gordon Krueckeberg, treasurer; and Ralph Bohr, financial secretary.

Mrs. Elmer Zimmer led the devotional at the meeting of Berean Sunday School class of Emmanuel Evangelical church Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. E. Schneider, 129 S. Outagamie-st. Forty members were present. A bake and apron sale was held in connection with the meeting, with officers in charge.

Patrol leaders of Boy Scout Troop 2 of the Methodist church will meet with Scoutmasters at 7 o'clock next Tuesday night in the Scout rooms of the church. The first meeting of the troop will be Sept. 20.

Trinity English Lutheran church will return to its pre-vacation schedule of services beginning next Sunday. Sunday school will be at 9 o'clock, and the worship hour will be held at 10:30.

Chapter J. of Trinity English Lutheran church will meet at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon instead of Monday at the home of Mrs. George E. Johnson, 505 S. State-st. This will be a business and social meeting.

The board of the Senior Walther League of Mt. Olive Lutheran church will meet Friday night in the church parlors. The meeting is called for 8 o'clock.

Holy Name society of St. Joseph church will receive Holy Communions at the 8 o'clock Mass Sunday morning. A breakfast and meeting at the parish hall will follow.

Fried Spring Chicken Sat. Nite, Joe Klein's, Kimberly.

Club Plans For Visit To Kohler

A trip to Kohler to be held next Wednesday will be sponsored by the Better Homes department of Appleton Women's club, according to final arrangements made at the general meeting of the club Thursday afternoon at the clubhouse. The trip will include transportation to Kohler, luncheon, and a trip through the Kohler plant and the model home. Reservations for the trip may be made at the office of the Woman's club. The group will leave at 8 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. J. R. Whitman and Mrs. W. D. Schlafer are in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. William Gary Brown, Chicago, gave an illustrated lecture on Washington, D. C., at the meeting, and Mrs. Bert Dutcher sang several vocal selections. It was announced that hereafter all memberships will be accepted at the clubhouse.

Mrs. Winifred Quinlan, Portland, Ore., was guest of honor at the first meeting of Sigma Iota alumnae for the fall Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Mildred Boettcher, Sampson-st. Mrs. Warren Wright, Chicago, was a guest also. Fourteen members were present and cards were played, prizes going to Mrs. Chris Larsen and Mrs. H. K. Pratt. The next meeting will be the first week in October at the home of the Misses Marjorie and Marion Miller, Superior-st.

Opening its fall season with a social meeting, the Fiction club will hold a picnic at 1 o'clock next Monday at Erb park. Mrs. Guy Barlow, Mrs. M. G. Clark and Mrs. George Wood will be hostesses. A short business meeting will take place after which cards will be played at the Barlow home, 215 E. Roosevelt-st.

Miss Lila Radtke, 825 N. Fair-st, entertained the T. N. T. bridge club at a dinner Thursday night at her cottage at Rockland Beach. Bridge followed the dinner. The club will meet next Thursday with Miss Virginia Westphal, W. Winnebago-st.

The Phi Mu Alumnae club will be entertained Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Eugene Pierce, 828 W. Fourth-st. Plans for the fall rushing activities will be discussed.

Parties

Mrs. Howard Richmond, Sr., and Mrs. W. H. Kreiss entertained at a porch party Thursday afternoon at the home of the latter, 408 N. Wood-st, in honor of Mrs. E. E. Dunn. Twenty-five guests were present. A buffet luncheon was served and the afternoon was spent informally. The event was in a nature of a thumb party.

Tom Hayes and Mrs. M. Welhouse won the schafkopf prizes at the card party given by Ladies Aid society of St. Joseph church Thursday afternoon at the parish hall. Mrs. J. Geiger won the prize at bridge and Mrs. John Stier the plumpjack award. Eleven tables were in play. Mrs. Harry Schommer was chairman.

Dr. and Mrs. Delos O. Kinsman, formerly of Appleton, are entertaining Dr. and Mrs. Charles Marsh, formerly of Green Bay, over the weeks at Danbury, Mass.

And still Wisconsin people write books which Washington wants to read.

The latest Badger authors are Miss Flora G. Orr, formerly of Mt. Hope, and Mrs. Edith Porter Lapish (Mrs. Harry Jo Lapish), graduate of the University of Wisconsin. Their little book, "Be Beautiful," with its blue cover and gold-lettered title, is certainly not sensational as that "More Merry-Ground" of a fellow Badger, but it is perhaps more important reading. It just depends on how badly you want to be beautiful.

Concise, and definite, the little book is very valuable, and it ranges from recipes for reducing to color charts for clothes. And it doesn't neglect the men, in fact, the original title of the book was going to be "Be Beautiful, Men, Women and Children." The men came off the title but not out of the book and they get their valuable beauty hints as well as the ladies.

A social meeting will be held Sept. 22 the committee for which includes Mrs. Katherine Pasch, Mrs. Paul Sonkowsky, Mrs. Barbara Stark, Mrs. Hilliard Weiss, Mrs. Carl Van Dinter, Mrs. W. Nowell, Jr., Mrs. William Koepke, Mrs. Greta Wenneman, Mrs. Irene Van derlinde, Mrs. Herman Trentlage, and Mrs. Charles Rowland. Twenty-six members were present.

All old officers of Equitable Reserve Association were reelected at the meeting Thursday night at Odd Fellows Hall. They are P. J. Vaughn, past president; Peter East, president; Mrs. Katherine London, vice president; Mrs. Viola Kobs, advisor; Mrs. Clara Vaughn, secretary; Miss Edith Ruth, treasurer; John Jensen, trustee; Peter Christl, warden; Arthur Kobs, inner guard; Edward Hesse, outer guard; Mrs. Margaret St. Clair, pianist.

The officers will be seated at a joint installation with other councils in the Fox river valley at Neenah sometime in October.

Cards were played at the social hour which followed the meeting, prizes being awarded to Mrs. George Mensinger, Mrs. Viola Kobs, Mrs. William Koetzke, and Mrs. De Wane Morneau. Fifty members were present.

Capt. Theodore A. Baumeister of Keweenaw and Capt. John W. Carroll of Milwaukee are members of the regular officers' class which held opening exercises at the Quartermaster Corps School in Philadelphia last Thursday.

Twenty-nine officers, representing 14 states, Panama, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands make up the class. Major General John L. DeWitt, the Quartermaster General, delivered the principal address Thursday.

Capt. Baumeister's last station was at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln; while Capt. Carroll's was in New York City.

HITLER'S "MISS LIBERTY"

Since none but the brave deserve the fair, a portrait of Fraulein Polly Frank, above, of Vienna, is to grace one side of a new medal with which Adolf Hitler will reward the services of some of his National Socialist followers. The likeness, however, will be in formal, classic lines, symbolizing Liberty.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

The Green Knife

Roger Sheringham, the English detective who stalks through the pages of books by Anthony Berkeley, is a pretty good detective, and Mr. Berkeley is a pretty good writer.

Consequently, Mr. Berkeley's mystery stories are highly readable, and "Murder in the Basement," his latest one, is a topnotch yarn throughout.

This story gets under way when two honeymooners discover a lady's corpse under the floor of the basement in the house they have just rented. For eight months or so the police can't even find out who the lady was; and after they do find out they can't get a line on the villain who put her there, except that they do know that the trail leads to a tony preparatory school. At this point, of course, Sheringham steps in, and the outcome of the yarn is as neat a surprise as you'll find in a long time.

"Murder in the Basement" is published by the Crime Club for $2.

I can't say nearly as much for "The Green Knife," by Anthony Wynne. In this yarn we have an English financier stabbed to death in a locked room from which no one could possibly have escaped —you know the sort of thing; people go about saying "It's simply inconceivable," and so on.

Then a couple of servants get killed in the same way, and finally Dr. Eustace Hailey ferrets out the truth as great peril to his own neck; but the while business is so involved and complicated and generally impossible that the book falls to the ground of its own weight, and I shan't try to lift it.

"The Green Knife" is published by Lippincott.

Trades Council to Hear Report on Celebration

A report on the celebration conducted at Pierce park on Labor day will be heard at a meeting of the Appleton Trades and Labor council at 8 o'clock next Wednesday evening in Trades and Labor council hall. Other business matters also will be discussed.

Legion to Ask For Immediate Bonus Payment

More Than Four-fifths of Votes Expected to Demand U. S. Cash

Washington—(P)—Legion officials here predict advocates of immediate bonus payments will control more than four-fifths of the votes at the American legion convention in Portland, Ore., next week.

Consequently, they expect the convention by an overwhelming majority will demand cash for compensation certificates. They fear, however, that the contest on the question might be prolonged by a dispute over whether the resolution to be adopted should mention the eviction of the bonus expeditionary force from Washington.

Tabulations kept by these legion officials show that on the basis of the last convention's voting strength there will be 1,160 ballots for the bonus and 61 against it with the remainder as yet in the undecided class.

The 1,160 total covers 35 states and the District of Columbia departments of the legion. Two other states—Virginia and Missouri—propose payment when it is believed the financial condition of the treasury can stand it.

Only three states so far have voted directly against payment. These are Florida, South Carolina and Nebraska. Kansas was expected by legion members here to do likewise, but its convention, just ended, added another 31 votes to the majority.

Seven department conventions controlling 29 votes took no action. These were Alabama, Delaware, Georgia, Maine, Vermont, Panama and Wyoming. Many members contend these will support payment.

Legion headquarters has not yet been advised of action by the departments of Alaska, Arkansas, Oregon, Canada, France, Hawaii, Italy, Mexico, the Philippines and South Dakota. In the latter state, a referendum is being conducted in the posts.

With the majority committed to the bonus, officials think there is a possibility of an extended fight over resolutions similar to those adopted in Maryland, Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas, criticizing the manner in which the B. E. F. was evicted from the capital. These five states hold 248 votes on the 1931 convention basis.

New York, Illinois and New Mexico, where such resolutions were defeated, have 198 ballots. Backers and opponents of moves to criticize the eviction both predict success at Portland.

Arrives at Church To Spoil Plans for Own Burial Service

Chicago—(P)—As a corpse, Caesar Milt was so lively he rode to his own funeral—on a hearse.

Mr. Milt, who lives in South Chicago, was in hospital expected to die by his many friends of the three burial societies to which he belonged, so his friend, William Peters arranged with the directors of the three organizations to take care of the situation at the proper time.

Then somehow the word got about that Mr. Milt had passed on to his reward. Lee Capper, driver of a hearse went to the hospital. There he met Mr. Milt, alive and apparently recovered from his recent illness. Capper called one of the directors of one of the burial associations and said:

"This got corpse," he began and got no further.

"Yes, yes, said the director, 'bring it along. The funeral's waiting. We can't waste time jawing about it.'

"But," objected Mr. Capper. But the director had hung up the telephone receiver.

In due course, the hearse, with Mr. Milt, arrived at the church, where several hundred mourners were startled to see Mr. Milt, climb out of the hearse and ask:

"What's this?"

No one waited to answer.

"Such popularity," observed Mr. Milt, "must be deserved."

Investigate Mystery Deaths of Many Trout

Merrill—(P)—An investigation was launched by game wardens and sportsmen in this vicinity Thursday following the discovery of hundreds of dead trout floating on the Prairie river, one of Wisconsin's most famous trout streams, near Dudley bridge, about 15 miles north of here.

The conservation commission has paid considerable attention to the Prairie river as a haven for fisherman, stocking the stream about five years ago.

Warden E. F. Osworth of Merrill said he believed the stream had been dynamited. He said he had picked up more than 100 dead fish in less than a mile and that children in the neighborhood had carried away many baskets full.

The warden was puzzled because all of the fish found were German brown trout, although the stream abounds in speckled and rainbow trout. These apparently had not been affected by the blast.

The warden said he would send some of the fish to the university and conservation commission at Madison to see if it could be determined why other varieties were not killed. He said he believed the dynamiting occurred Wednesday morning.

Plans for Year Discussed
At Meeting of Directors

Menasha — Plans for admission of additional boys and girls in the Children's Country home at Winneconne were made at a regular meeting of the 12 directors at Winneconne Thursday afternoon. Applications for the admission of several children have been received.

Reports revealed that 50 per cent of the children at the country home are orphans, while the average for similar institutions throughout the state is about 10 per cent.

During the summer, girls from the Y. W. C. A. made weekly visits to the home and taught dramatics and the making of baskets, jewelry and belts. All the children at the home were taken to the circus at Oshkosh last month.

Col. Henry Dickman of Oshkosh will present a talk on the Philippines at the home Sunday evening, it was announced.

Other reports disclosed that the Appleton organization in support of the home is active, and that the home is in need of an upright piano in good condition.

Increase Requirements For Vulnerable Notrump

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Among the other improvements for the year 1933 which the Culbertson System will advocate is the raising of the requirements for an Opening one notrump bid, when vulnerable.

To open, vulnerable, with one notrump, a player must have no bidable suit and a minimum of 4 honor-tricks. This has been decided upon to avoid the pitfalls which confront even the very best players when their Opening vulnerable notrumps are doubled for a Takeout and the partner of the Doubler passes for a penalty. Bidding a notrump on a hand containing 21, 3, or even 3½ honor-tricks is very liable to run into a set of from 600 to 1400 points, if partner holds a worthless hand. Holding less than 4 honor-tricks and no strictly bidable suit, the player must shade the requirements and bid a suit.

Thus, holding—

Spades Q 10; Hearts, A Q 2; Diamonds, K 10 3; Clubs, A 9 4 3; it is far better to bid one club than one notrump, even though the club is quite shaky. A Takeout Double of a suit bid is very rarely left in, and if a Double of your one club bid should be passed for a penalty, you or your partner have an exit to any of the other suits without increasing the contract. An example of perfectly sound and good vulnerable notrump will be seen in the following hand:

Spades A Q 6; Hearts, K Q 5; Diamonds, Q J 9 4; Clubs, A J 3. This hand, although not an absolutely minimum vulnerable notrump, is not by any means a maximum vulnerable one notrump bid.

The following hand was recently played at a New York City Bridge club:

♦ A 8 7 4 2
♦ Q 8 3 2
♦ J 7 4
K Q 10 3 N J 6
♦ A 9 W E ♦ K 6 3
♦ K 9 S ♦ Q 8 6 2
♦ A 9 5
♦ K 1 10
♦ 10 7 4
♦ A 10 5 3

South, as Dealer, bid one notrump, which West doubled. North passed, and East, of course, passed for a penalty. The penalty proved to be 1,000 points, whereas the best that East and West, not vulnerable, could have scored would have been some 500 points for a game. Had South bid a club, West would also have doubled, but it is highly doubtful if East could have passed this bid for a penalty, and even if he had done so, the penalty would have been at most 600 points and conceivably less. When South's vulnerable notrump was left in, South could have made an S O S Redouble, but even this could not have saved him from the impending disaster, as now they would have been forced to play the hand at two of whichever suit North chose with which to rescue.

The moral is: "Make your vulnerable notrumps 'rock-crushers,' sufficiently strong that any bank would lend you money on them."

Tomorrow's Hand.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

North—Dealer.

♦ K J 3
♦ A 10
♦ Q J 10 8 7 6 4
♦ A Q 8 N ♦ 6 5 2
♦ K 0 4 ♦ J 8 7 4
♦ Q 10 9 6 W E ♦ A 9 3
♦ 5 2 ♦ 10 9 5 4
♦ 9 8 7 3
♦ A K 3 2
♦ K

Neither side vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article. Copyright, 1932, by Ely Culbertson

INDIVIDUALITY IN SATIN GOWN

Here's an individual dress you'll just love for its interesting details. It's cut rather along slenderizing lines, making it equally suited for the miss or the matron.

The draped treatment of the bodice is very smart. And don't you think the puffed sleeves, tightened at the wrist adorable?

A satin crepe is stunning for to fashion it.

You can also use rough crepe silk, which is extremely voguish. Wool crepe would also prove a charming medium.

Style No. 779 is designed for sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material with 1 yard of 35-inch all-over lace.

QUEEN OF WHIST, NATIVE OF GREEN BAY, TELLS ABOUT EARLY DAY BRIDGE CONVENTIONS

BY PAUL HARRISON

New York — "There were no kibitzers in the old days," said Miss Kate Irwin Wheelock, the "whist queen."

"No, sir, a couple of generations ago, a person's hand was considered as private as his thoughts. In more than one sense of the word was whist a 'gentleman's game.' It was played in a refined way, and by people of culture."

The oldest living teacher of bridge laughed suddenly and rifled a sheaf of telegrams on the card table before her. "I'm talking like a dodering sentimental," she continued. "I guess it's because they've wired me all these congratulations on my seventy-fifth birthday. They make me think back."

"But I don't mean to sigh for the gay nineties. I'm glad the game has changed, too—from whist to bridge, from bridge to auction, and from auction to contract. And I'm glad that millions of people are enjoying it—even if many of them don't play it any more."

A Pioneer Teacher of Bridge

"Except for Edmund Hoyle, who died in 1769, I was the very first person to teach whist. I started in 1885. Also I was one of the first to teach auction and contract, and I don't mind admitting that contract is the best of all. I play it myself as often as I can."

White-haired and plump, with an active mind and a whole-hearted laugh, Miss Wheelock lives alone in a comfortable apartment in the neighborhood of the famous bridge clubs of Manhattan. She is retired now; hasn't taught in a couple of years, although she still goes to teachers' conventions in the role of the game's dowager empress. She doesn't play in tournaments now, either, believing that she is no longer has quick perception.

Besides, she says, any teacher is likely to become too mechanical, too steeped in method. But she is trying to overcome this fault by studying the modern "psychic" bid.

Miss Wheelock was born in Green Bay, Wis., but it was in Milwaukee where the American Whist League later was organized, that she began teaching fellow members of the Ladies' Whist Circle at 12 cents an hour per person.

It was considered rather daring for a woman to teach cards in that day, and Miss Wheelock's first pupils were society women whose husbands were whist adepts. Soon, though, the husbands themselves were coming to her for instruction, and her rates went to $1 an hour. She moved to Chicago, then to New York, and finally conducted teaching tours throughout the country and abroad. Her clientele included some of the greatest names in society and business. Her rates were $12 an hour when she retired.

"I hesitated to teach bridge when it first came in," Miss Wheelock reminisced. "I remember saying that they were tacking on the name of whist to make it sound respectable. Most of us were afraid it would become a gambling game."

"It seems funny now that I remember how innocent it was, and the polite little formalities that were attached to it." The dealer always had to play the hand, although if he had a poor hand he might say: "Please make it," and his partner had to name the suit for trumps. Then the player at dealers' left would ask "May I lead?" The other defensive player, if he didn't want to double, would answer: "Pray do."

Outwardly Polite, But—

"There was a determined form of politeness between players of that day. Card-table manners didn't permit wrangling of the sort that goes on now. But I suspect that feelings were about the same. All through my teaching career, for instance, I usually have been careful to put husbands and wives at different tables.

"There is something about cards that make more enmity between intimates than between acquaintances. Of course in every circle there are married couples who get along wonderfully well together."

"Men generally are better bridge players than women. But they're not as superior as they think they are. Women are likely to study bridge more seriously and become better posted on fine technicalities and rules. But they don't take the calculating business chances that men do."

In more than half a century of card playing the best hand the Whist Queen ever saw had only ten trumps. She didn't hold it, either. Miss Wheelock frankly does not believe that she is stacked the cards. To confound players who insinuate that she is just a stubborn skeptic, she sometimes stacks them herself.

What she does believe is that in most cases when such phenomenal hands occur, there is a joker—not in the deck, but in the room—who has stacked the cards. To

Be Slender But Always Eat Wisely

BY ELSIE PIERCE

PERHAPS you have envied the film favorites. Perhaps you have wondered how in the world they did it. Yesterday I told you how they exercise to keep in trim. Today let me divulge some of their diet secrets.

There's one thing I learned while in Hollywood, about diet. I mean, and about the stars. As in every thing else, they are very sensible about their food. Very few starve themselves, particularly when working on a production. Food is fuel for strength, and they need plenty of that to keep well while working, for motion picture work is far more strenuous than many of us imagine.

Most of the stars have studied themselves and their diets scientifically, and know just what foods to "taboo."

Virginia Bruce feels that potatoes and bread are the most fattening for her, so she eliminates these. She also substitutes grapefruit for orange juice feeling that orange juice is one-quarter sugar. Joan Crawford avoids potatoes, bread and candy. Can you imagine Joan anything but slim and gorgeous? If eliminating these foods is responsible for her beautiful figure, well, what do you say we do it, all of us?

Except, of course, those of us who actually need to gain weight (count me out, I'm not in your class). Claudette Colbert is. She tries to gain weight constantly. Yet her diet consists mainly of fruits and vegetables, and this should interest you, plenty of milk. Rich foods are avoided, however.

Joan, however, avoids potatoes, bread and candy. Can you imagine Joan anything but slim and gorgeous? If eliminating these foods is responsible for her beautiful figure, well, what do you say we do it, all of us?

"No girl turns down a boy who is intelligent and amusing and a good dancer because he isn't as handsome as Ramon Navarro. No employer considers a boy's looks when he goes to hire him. But a homely girl is foreordained to paper the wall when she goes to a dance, and when she applies for a job she gets the fish eye, and some pretty little Dumb Dora, who can't spell c-a-t or add up 2 and 2 without making a mistake, gets the situation."

Such being the case, and every girl being traditionally bound to be beautiful though ugly, consider the never-ending labor of those of us who are not born Dolores Costello, and who have to spend our lives starving ourselves to acquire a willowy figure, being scalped to attain wavy hair, who must put in hours and hours a day painting roses and eyebrows where they ought to be on our faces and otherwise trying to camouflage our defects. Fierce? You said it.

"As for girlhood being the carefree time of life, take it from one who has tried it, that nothing but a presidential race can compare with it for stress and strain and jealousy and bitterness and agonized waiting. Every party is a nightmare. You don't know whether you are going to be asked, or whether some boy is going to want to take you, whether there will be cut-ins or some poor youth looking like an early Christian martyr will have to drag you about. And if a girl isn't a hit with boys and she has to sit at home with mamma and papa when all the other girls are out going places and doing things, she goes through an experience as humiliating and heart-breaking and hopeless as ever falls to a human lot."

"Then consider the bored girls who have to endure. They are the only people in the world who have to suffer fools gladly, as the Bible says. For a girl to get the reputation of being difficult and choosy is fatal to her. It makes men afraid of her and scares them off. For men are like sheep. They follow the leader. Where one goes, they all go."

"So in order to find a nice lamb or two a girl has to put up with a whole herd of goats. She has to dance with clumsy boobs who trample her satin slippers to pieces. She has to listen with a rapt expression of delight to egotists who maulder on about themselves. She has to smile on senile grandpas and callow collegians and make every man she comes in contact with think he is giving her the treat of her life by merely permitting her to look at him, or else she will be considered a flop and spend her evenings sucking her thumbs by her own fisticule."

"Then there is the technique in dealing with men that she has to develop, which requires as much diplomacy as it does to settle a League of Nations problem. For no two men can be handled just the same way and the poor girl has to be awake at night trying to figure out whether she had better be old-fashioned and shy and shrinking, or modern and frank and do the proposing herself."

"And always the girl has to work under cover, which cramps her style. No matter how hard she is pursuing a man, she has to give him the impression that she is fleeing from him, and if that doesn't require finesse, I don't know what does."

"Also, girls have to mostly rustle their dates in these days, for the masculine slogan is: 'Let Mary do it.' They have to do the telephoning and think of amusing things to do and work like coal-heavers to keep the men entertained, and that adds a few more tons to the white girl's burden."

"And, worst of all, the modern girl has to strike a happy medium between prudence and prudery. She has to be her own chaperon and be a good sport while still keeping a death grip on the Ten Commandments, and that takes a bit of doing, as the English say."

"It is because being a girl is the most arduous and strenuous business on earth that makes us so anxious to marry. We want to get where we will only have to please one man instead of the entire masculine sex."

(Copyright, 1932)

Just Being a Girl is Task Enough for any One Person

"I have found out why most women marry the way they do," said a girl the other day. "It is because they are so exhausted by the labor and strain of being a girl that they are desperate, and any man who comes along and offers them a wedding ring looks like the head of a rescue expedition to them, so they just shut their eyes and grab him. They marry to keep from being girls any longer, if you get what I mean. They want to get into a state where they can sit down and relax for a moment and stop smiling sweet and cute and let their face muscles straighten out and tell some man what they think of him and his sex."

"For, believe me, this business of being a girl is the most strenuous occupation that anybody ever followed, and it is no wonder that nobody wants a girl baby, and no girl wants to be a girl, and that girls put on pants and try to look as much like boys as they can. They know what they are up against and how out of luck they are, and that's what makes them to all this happy girlhood and carefree girlhood and rosebud-gardens-of-girls stuff and all that tosh propaganda put out by men who never even tried being girls for a day."

"Why, lookit. Every girl is supposed to be beautiful, isn't she? Of course. She has to be there with the pulchritude and bathing beauty effects, no matter what nature did to her shape in the first place. She also substitutes grapefruit for orange juice feeling that orange juice is one-quarter sugar.

Joan Crawford avoids potatoes, bread and candy. Can you imagine Joan anything but slim and gorgeous? If eliminating these foods is responsible for her beautiful figure, well, what do you say we do it, all of us?

Students From New London off For Colleges

Annual Exodus for Universities Already Is Under Way

Special to Post-Crescent

New London — The annual exodus of students for colleges and universities is underway, and the list of departures includes many who were graduates of the 1932 class. Among these will be Warren Shoemaker, Kenneth Black, Irl Poehlman, and Wesley Cale who will enter the University of Wisconsin. Irvin Denning has already entered the junior college at Virginia, Minn., Miss Lolita Abram will take a three-year course at Columbia hospital, Milwaukee, and Dorothy Bender will attend State Teachers college at Milwaukee.

Those who will enter Outagamie Rural Normal school at Kaukauna will be Myrtle Gorges, Sarah Haskell, Elizabeth Murray, Verne Tank, Pearl Thern and Ruby Zierner. Marjorie Zaug enters Ward Belmont, at Nashville, Tenn., Mary Wendlandt goes to the University of Minnesota and Elizabeth Morse to Lawrence college. Helen Mulhane will enter Oshkosh state teachers college and Beatrice Schmalenberg will attend the state university. Alice Mae Zierner will take a course at North Central college at Naperville, Ill.

William Dayton, who attended the University of Arizona last year, has enrolled at the Oshkosh State Teachers college. His brother, Robert, will continue at the state university. Charles Pfeifer will continue at Lawrence, Winston Thomas at Stevens Point State teachers college, and Patrick Cooney, Wilfred and Theodore Wiedenbeck will return to the state university at Madison. David and Claire Mulroy, Harold Hoy and Andrew Bult will study at St. Norbert's college in De Pere. Monroe Brown will return to LaCrosse.

Others who will return to school will be Dorothy Zaug, who will continue at Beloit, George Dernbach to Marquette, Harold Black to North Central college. Stanley Zierner will be at the university, where he will study at the agricultural college.

Many students have registered for special work as post graduates at the local high school. Commercial courses, manual arts, chemistry and domestic science and music are among the chief attractions, while some students will enroll for the regular course of study.

Among those who have enrolled as special students are Dorothy Wendlandt, William Sohrweide, Alvin Schafer, Randolph Sager, Claire Rickaby, Edward Redman, Anita Pace, Virginia Laux Eileen Krause, Magdalene Knapstein, Marie Karthun, Jay Joubert, Anna Johnson, Marie Hein, Frederick Beulow, Donald Farrell, Howard Finger, Robert Avery, Randolph Sager and Alvin Brault.

New London Society

Special to Post-Crescent

New London — Employees of the Verifine Dairy company of this city and their families this afternoon are on their annual picnic at the Verifine pavilion south of the city. A baseball game will be followed with dinner and dancing.

1,000 Visitors See Museum Last Month

Special to Post-Crescent
New London — Nearly 1,000 visitors inspected the new museum during August, according to the custodian, Mrs. N. R. Denning. The registration shows that many of the visitors were from Illinois, while there also were people from distant states, California and North Carolina included.

The building has received many compliments and visitors have spent much time pouring over the wild life, stamp and antique collections.

The Rev. F. S. Dayton, curator of the museum, has made a plea for classes in which exhibits might be displayed. An excellent collection of military specimens cannot be shown because there is at present no available case, and many temporary loans cannot be exhibited for the same reason. There is a need of several tables, the Rev. Dayton stated.

Managers of out of town factories also are attending.

Mrs. Lulu Dauterman, secretary of the Congregational Ladies Aid society, at the meeting at the church Wednesday reported that $106 had been cleared by the society through serving buffet suppers at the Dixon school gymnasium in connection with the reunion day entertainment.

Mrs. C. J. Krause, Mrs. Arthur Sweeny, Mrs. Henry Stern of this city and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilden, who have returned from Rochester, Minn., where they attended the wedding of Miss Helen Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Thomas of that city and granddaughter of Mrs. C. J. Krause of this city, who was married to Dr. Louis M. Overton of Rocky Mount, N. C. The service occurred at the Congregational church in Rochester and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. William Black of Seymour was also among the guests. Dr. and Mrs. Overton after a ten-day wedding trip in northern Minnesota will leave to make their home in the east.

A surprise party was held Wednesday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Martin McDermott of this city, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. The affair was held at the home of their son, Merton McDermott in Hortonville. Mr. and Mrs. McDermott were married in this city in the old Catholic church which was then located on S. Wolf River-ave. The Rev. P. L. Lockman performed the ceremony. The attendants were George McDermott, a brother of the groom, and Miss Nellie Cavanaugh, a cousin of the bride. The couple settled on a farm in Hortonville which they operated until ten years ago.

Mr. McDermott is 76 and was born in New York state. Mrs. McDermott was formerly Miss Mary Cavanaugh and came to this state when one year old from Ohio. They have three children, Merton of Hortonville, Mrs. Will Furman of Menomonie and Miss Nellie McDermott of this city.

Miss Ruth Seymour, for two years a teacher in the McKinley school in this city, has been married to Chris Burmeister of Hillsboro. The marriage took place Sept. 1 at Reddsburg. Mr. and Mrs. Burmeister will reside in Hillsboro.

Roal Amundsen of Norway, was the first man to reach the south pole. He reached that point on Dec. 11, 1911.

Name McCaw Head Of Tilleson Post At Clintonville

Elect New Legion Officers At Meeting of Organization at Armory

Special to Post-Crescent

Clintonville — William McCaw was elected commander of Oscar J. Tilleson post No. 63, American Legion at the annual election of officers Wednesday evening at the armory. Carl Knapp is the returning commander of the local post.

Other officers elected were Evan Vaughn, first vice commander; Miles Dempsey, second vice commander; Roy Melzer, adjutant; Frank Manser, finance officer; Leo Pelsmick, post historian; Harry Pester, chaplain; George Heyer, sergeant-at-arms. Dr. Irving Auld and Dr. R. E. Knister were elected to the executive board in addition to the entire staff of officers.

It is planned to hold the installation ceremonies at the next meeting, Oct. 5.

Mrs. E. G. Billmeyer sustained injuries to her arm and body bruises in a fall down the basement stairs at her home Tuesday morning.

A reunion of the Kautz family was held Sunday at Rustic resort Clover Leaf Lakes. A picnic dinner and supper were served as the day was spent in picnic activities. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rindt and family, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Grosskopf, Mr. and Mrs. William Ebert and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fick, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Westfall, all of Clintonville; Mr. and Mrs. William Raschke of Leopold; Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Buelow, Mrs. Louise Schuler and family of Shawano; Mrs. Paul Capewell of Two Rivers; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schroeder and children of Milwaukee.

Royal Neighbors held a business meeting Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. William H. Schmidt. Plans were completed for attending the county convention to be held at New London Sept. 27. A large number of members from this city plan to attend. The local lodge will resume regular meetings on Oct. 5.

Mrs. William Laabs, Sr., of this city underwent a serious operation Thursday morning at New London Community hospital.

Miss Mildred Miller and Arthur Schoenheide represented the Christian Luther league of this city at the state convention of Luther leagues at Camp Cleghorn, Chain O'Lakes, Waupaca on Sept. 3, 4 and 5. About 100 delegates attended the convention, representing 22 leagues of this state.

All former officers were reelected at the monthly meeting of Christians Lutheran Ladies Aid society held Wednesday afternoon in the church parlors. They are Mrs. Louis Pasch, president; Mrs. Hans Nath, vice president; Mrs. Fred Gensler, recording secretary; Mrs. George Schinke, financial secretary and Mrs. Ed. Fritz, treasurer. Annual reports for the past year's work were submitted and other routine business transacted. A lunch was served at the close of the afternoon by Mrs. Bruno Buchholz, Mrs. Frank Eggleston, Mrs. Ed. Feltner and Mrs. Albert Ulerich.

A cablegram was received by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Trieglaff Wednesday, announcing the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Massey on Wednesday morning at their home in Aruba, Dutch West Indies. Mrs. Massey was Miss Viola Trieglaff of this city before her marriage and is a daughter of the two former and a sister of Mrs. Henry Zuhse of this city.

H. S. Gridders Close Week's Drill Tomorrow With Scrimmage

Open Season
Next Saturday
With Pointers

Valley Schedule Starts
Sept. 24 When West
Bays Show Here

APPLETON high school football squad will close the first week of practice Saturday morning when Coach Joseph Shields and his assistants send the boys through a scrimmage session. Efforts were made to get a scrimmage with Neenah or Menasha but neither squad was ready.

The first injuries of the season cropped up last night when Joe Burke dislocated his elbow and another youngster cut his hand on glass or a sharp stone. Neither injury amounts to much but the boys will be missing for a couple of days.

Early in the week numerous foot injuries were reported because of the hard condition of the practice field. The field since has been flooded by the street department and now is in better condition.

With long, hard drills under direction of Shields, Ken Laird, Myron Seims and Leland Delforge, the Orange squad appears to be rounding into shape nicely. There are no definite conclusions to draw regarding positions or the relative strength of the backfield or line. It first was believed the line would be exceptionally good and the backs weak. The reverse almost seems to be the case now with a week's practice gone.

Drills for the past week have been very much of a preliminary type although some signal practice has been tossed in for good measure. Fundamentals of the game have been stressed and with the squad divided much work is being accomplished daily.

The first game of the season will be played next Saturday afternoon, Sept. 17, when the Orange invades Stevens Point for a battle with Harry Ringgold's team. Last season Ring's aggregation bumped the Orange down here and Coach Shields wishes to return the compliment.

Fox River Valley league play opens on Sept. 24 at which time Appleton plays West Green Bay here. The complete Orange schedule follows:

Sept. 17—Appleton at Stevens Point. (Non-conference).
Sept. 24—West Green Bay here.
Oct. 1—Appleton at East Green Bay.
Oct. 8—Appleton at Fond du Lac.
Oct. 15—Manitowoc at Appleton.
Oct. 21—Marinette at Appleton.
Oct. 29—Oshkosh at Appleton.
Nov. 5—Appleton at Sheboygan.
Nov. 11—Appleton at Kaukauna. (Non-conference).

Hubbard Reports To Bay Packers

Brisk Ticket Sale for Grand Rapids Game Sunday Afternoon

Green Bay—Cal Hubbard, giant Packer tackle, reported for practice yesterday morning and seemed to be in the pink of condition after a strenuous season of umpiring in the Western league.

The big forward stepped around lively in his initial football drill and it is likely that he will see some action against the Grand Rapids.

A circuit drive by Don Hurst with two on base in the first inning gave the Phillips a 3 to 0 victory over the Cardinals in the only other National league game as Ray Ene limited the 1931 champions to three hits.

Coach E. L. Lambeau has been driving his men at top speed during the week of practice which started last Thursday. The Bay pilot is giving every player a chance to make the grade and there never has been keener competition for positions on a Green Bay club.

It is Coach Lambeau's plan to use every member of his squad in the Grand Rapids' tilt as he wants to see how the candidates handle themselves under fire. With five ends and a 'flock' of backfield men there will be continual process in and out of the game. This year's football rules allow for frequent substitutions.

Brisk Ticket Demand

Indications point to a good size crowd at the opening contest. Football interest is hot here and all the ticket selling places report a good demand. According to E. A. Spachmann, head of the Packer ticket bureau, the request for opening game tickets from out of town is larger than ever before. Milwaukee is sending a large delegation of fans according to a report from the Gross Hardware co., sellers of the Packer tickets in the Cream City. Pettibone's at Appleton have asked for more tickets to meet the demand in the College City.

Darkness Helps Bakers Lose to Deuces Aces

Spirkers Bakers was defeated Tuesday evening by Deuces Aces by a score of 8 to 7. Mitchell did the hurling for the Bakers while Hammond worked for the Aces. The Bakers were led by a score of 7 to 6 with two men on base, and two men away when the batter hit the ball and because of darkness it was impossible to see and two runs came in making the score 8 to 7 in favor of the Aces.

Make Wealthy Pay Share of Taxes—Blaine

Stalwarts Would Place Burden on Home, U. S. Senator Says

Expressing the belief that the people of the country are interested not in campaign "mid-slinging" but in facts concerning the state and nation, United States Senator John J. Blaine, candidate for re-election on the Progressive Republican ticket, in his talk at Pierce park Thursday evening, presented a record on men and measures in Wisconsin and Congress and avowed his willingness to stand on his own record as a public official. These records, he pointed out, are public, to which no public servant can take exception.

Stating that he had attempted to bring to the senate the Progressive philosophy of government together with his experience and knowledge of state and national affairs, Senator Blaine reviewed his activities in the interest of dairying, the largest single industry in Wisconsin. He told of his fight against the use of oleomargarine and butterine in the veterans hospitals and other institutions, and of his activities to protect dairymen and consumers in the United States against fraud.

His record concerning his work in behalf of the American Federation of Teachers was brought forth, and a testimony from that organization was quoted by the speaker.

Reviews Strike

Senator Blaine told of his efforts in the interest of the Workmen's Compensation act which resulted in larger benefits in case of injury or death. He presented a record of his work in the railroad shopmen's strike in 1922 when an injunction affecting every man on the railroads of the United States was issued.

The injunction, said the speaker, denied these men their constitutional right, the right to assemble and present their case to the railroads. Through the efforts of a sub-committee of the judiciary committee, of which Senator Blaine was a member, he stated, a bill was introduced in Congress which took four years to pass because of the power of special interests. As a result of the passage of this bill, the working man of the United States was given the same rights as any other citizen regarding litigation in courts, he said.

The question of taxation, as a major issue in the campaign, was given a thorough "going-over" by Senator Blaine. Describing the taxation policy of the progressives as taxation according to ability to pay, he stated that this policy is not only based on sound principles but also on the vote of the people. To substantiate his statement, he referred to the time when Robert M. LaFollette fought for the income tax amendment to the constitution, and upon its submission to the people of the state, it was ratified by them.

Opposed Amendment

The stalwarts, continued the speaker, opposed the amendment. Their policy, the senator charged, proposes to take the burden of taxation from the backs of those best able to pay and place it upon those least able to pay. He then followed with a veritable barrage of statistics concerning the various administrations destined to show that during stalwart stewardship taxes were increasing steadily, while during the administration of the Progressives taxes were constantly being reduced. He quoted a table showing the scale of taxation to substantiate his statements.

He told of the sessions of 1925 when in the state assembly A. M. Miller "stood like a rock to plug up the holes in taxation." The senator asked for the renomination and reelection of Mr. Miller to the state senate.

Scoring what he termed as the lack of information on the part of former governor Walter J. Kohler concerning state expenditures, Senator Blaine took exception to the statement attributed to Kohler that expenditures during the La. Follette regime amounted to $80,000,000. He pointed out that an emergency fund was not to be considered as a state expenditure, nor is school aid entirely expended by the state. He then quoted a record of state expenditures under the last four governors showing the amount under his own regime to be $25,300,000, under Governor Zimmerman, $25,600,000, under Governor Kohler, $29,400,000. He used this record as a basis for his charge that "Kohler has been the most extravagant governor the state has had since its foundation in 1848."

Denies Deficit

Senator Blaine took exception to Governor Kohler's claim that he inherited a deficit, and quoted the treasurer's record showing that Governor Zimmerman left a cash balance in the treasury of $2,981,483.73 over and above highway funds.

In discussing the principles and philosophy of government in state and national affairs, the senator said that all economic problems, relief problems, and unemployment problems have their roots in the question of taxation.

Senator Blaine outlined the history of the general sales tax which was defeated by the House of Representatives, but, he stated, the stalwarts will propose another sales tax more far-reaching and more inclusive than the first. He then asked for the renomination and reelection of Congressman George J. Schneider, who voted against the sales tax when it was first presented.

The Progressive income tax amendment, which was defeated, the speaker went on, proposed to place a tax on the large reservoirs of wealth. The stalwarts introduced their amendment, he continued, which proposed to place the burden on the home by taxing many of the necessities of life.

This amendment, said Senator Blaine, would have resulted in further reduction of purchasing power, making more acute the conditions of idleness in industry. The amendment was defeated, he concluded, but the stalwarts came forth with a special sales tax on a num-

Good Times Bound To Return, Says Roger W. Babson

Depression Frightens People Just Like Eclipses Did

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Park—In olden times people were terribly frightened when there was an eclipse of the sun because they were afraid that the sun would never shine again. Today there is no such fear because people know the sun will shine again. The general knowledge of economics today is in the same stage that the general knowledge of astronomy was three hundred years ago.

If the people today had the same faith in business leaders that they have in astronomers, prosperity would return very quickly.

Reasons for Hard Times

Although we have learned respect for the laws of astronomy, we are still heedless and superstitious savages in our attitude toward many of the most important economic, moral, and spiritual laws. Business depressions do not fall upon us by chance. These economic eclipses obey definite laws and have exact origins. They are caused by greed, debt, waste, worldly excesses, and neglect of the church and religion. Hard times are the direct results of wild times and can be forecast with almost astronomical accuracy.

When the astronomers informed us that an eclipse was coming, we gave immediate heed to their calculations. Are we equally alert in economics and ethics? No. In the wild years culminating in 1929, people were told emphatically that a continuance of their heedless ways would certainly bring on an economic eclipse. They laughed at such forecasts and plunged ahead more madly than ever. The newspapers were mainly silent on the subject. Even some of the economic students themselves were rather half-hearted in their warnings. People do not yet sufficiently take their economic and spiritual laws seriously.

Depressions Pass

Again, when the almost total darkness of business depression covered the whole country it was nearly impossible to make the public believe that the sun would ever shine once more, at least with its former radiance. There was talk of economic chaos and permanent destruction of the higher standards of living. Why didn't we have faith in spiritual laws? They clearly show that the industry, prudence, honesty, righteousness, and other moral forces which are generated during a depression, point to an approaching period of renewed economic welfare. People have accepted without debate the calculation that the sun's eclipse will be only temporary, but in the field of spiritual forces they shake their heads.

In three years 1929-1932 we have had a terrific proof that violation of vital principles brings on the inevitable collapse of our well-being. The more prolonged the orgy and the greater the extreme to which it is carried, the more complete the devastation. People are sadly in need of two things: First, to realize that the depression was not an accident, a caprice of ill-fortune, without cause or explanation. They need to be told and re-told that the depression was but the logical consequence of their own conduct. Second, people need sound encouragement. There are a multitude of injuries to be healed and broken hearts to be bound up. They need encouragement too in continuing the better pattern of living which depression so painfully teaches us to pursue.

Call to Churches

J. M. Conway, president and general manager of the Hoberg Paper and Fibre company, and a member of the Wisconsin Unemployment commission, stated that the increase of the last 30 days has been the "most notable gain in business since 1929."

Austin E. Coffin, president and general manager of the Fort Howard Paper company, stated that his mill also had noted an increase in business in the last few weeks.

Unusual Plants Grow in Smoky Mountain Area
Cullowhee, N. C. — (P) — Though few in number, the mountain forests of North Carolina furnish specimens of both parasitic and saprophytic plants.

Of the parasites, there are mistletoe and dodder. The Cherokee Indians of the Qualla reservation here call the mistletoe "udial," meaning "it is married." This is the home of the Gerardia, a fern leaved false fox-glove and the painted cup, both considered "parasitic in nature" by botanists. Two common examples of saprophytic plants—those plants which obtain their food from decaying organic matter—the Indian pipe and the pinesap or false beech drops, thrive in this section.

EVERY WOMAN faces this question

"How do I look to other people?" If you have a lovely skin, attractive eyes, and plenty of enthusiasm, you need not worry.

So many women, though, risk their beauty by neglect of constipation. It often causes loss of pep, yellow skins, dull eyes, pimples.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This cereal provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B which tones the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Special cooking processes make it finer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming.

Surely this is safer than abusing the system with pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoonsfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Nothing Venture

Chapter 1
A Will Is Made
"YOU were saying?" said Mr. Page.

At the moment, Ambrose Weare was not saying anything at all. He had been speaking, but had fallen silent. His bed had been pushed close to the big jutting window, and his eyes had gone from his lawyer to the green lawn and the lilacs, and beyond to the glittering blue of the sea.

It was a May day, a wind blowing and small white clouds racing before it across a rain-washed sky. Ambrose Weare sat propped up in his bed. He was dying, for no very discernible reason except that, having lived 87 years with energy and a masterful disregard of everything except the whim of the moment, he had now taken it into his head to die.

Mr. Page tapped up on his writing pad.

"You were saying?" he repeated.

Ambrose Weare turned his head. The eyes, under shaggy grey eyebrows, still held a spark of malice.

"I wasn't saying anything. What you mean is that you want me to get out."

"Well," said Mr. Page.

Ambrose Weare laughed, not a very pleasant sound.

"Lord, Page! What a bedside manner you've got! Why can't you say straight out that I've no time to waste, and that even if I had, it's a fine afternoon and a pity to spend it in a sick-room, when you might be a great deal more pleasantly occupied with the young people?"

Mr. Page was looking relieved. He did not know quite what he had expected, but with Ambrose Weare it might have been anything. He said with a smile:

"Almost a superfluous condition, Mr. Weare, since he is engaged."

The hawk nose above the thin mouth twitched a little.

"Engaged? Isn't married," said Ambrose Weare. "He's been engaged for six months, and when I talk to him about getting married, he doesn't want to hurry her. And when I talk to her, she thinks being engaged is so delightful that she'd like it to go on far ever. Nonsense! Not want to hurry her? I'll see to it that he hurries her! He'll have to if he doesn't want to go to her for pocket money!" Mr. Weare chuckled. "If he doesn't marry before the three months is up, she gets the lot."

Mr. Page was plainly startled.

"Miss Carew?" he exclaimed.

"My great-niece, Rosamund Veronice Leonard Carew. What any man or woman wants with more than one name, is beyond me. Pack of nonsense! But take 'em down—Rosamund—Veronice—Leonard. If Jervis isn't married in three months and a day—well, throw in the day for luck—she comes in instead of him and gets the lot!"

"Mr. Weare—I must point out very seriously—" A loud, low fury passed over the face against the high white pillow. The right hand lying on the crimson comforter clenched and lit.

"Write what I tell you! It's my will isn't it?"

"Mr. Weare I must point out—"

The clenched hand fell, the head tilted a little. Mr. Page, alarmed, broke off.

Ambrose Weare shut his eyes.

"Write-what-I-told-you," he said in a changed, fluttering voice.

Mr. Page wrote with a reluctant and disapproving pen.

Nan Forsyth looked up from her typewriter and dropped her hands from the keys. Jervis Weare was coming out. Half and hour—20 minutes—ten... She did not know how long it was since he had come in with his frown and the jerk of the shoulders which said, as plainly as any words, "For heaven's sake let's get this over!"

He always came in like that; and then, after ten—20—30 minutes, out again, with his black head up and the frown gone, as if he had got rid of something, for the moment at any rate. He never spoke to her except to ask for Mr. Page, and then he might as well have been speaking into a telephone.

It was a false alarm. He wasn't coming after all, though she had certainly heard him push back his chair a minute ago. This was his last visit. She and Miss Villiers had been called in to witness his signature to the deed of settlement. Miss Villiers, who had typed the deed, had been loud in praise of its generosity.

"My, dear! She's a lucky girl twenty-five hundred a year just to spend on yourself! And just as likely as not she'll have no idea of how to do justice."

"What a fool you are, Villiers!" she said. "Look here, have you that mortgage Mr. Page was asking for?"

"My! No! I clean forgot."

"Then you'd better go and look for it."

Villiers went reluctantly.

Desperately Nan hoped that she would not find the mortgage until Jervis Weare had come striding through the room. She wanted just that one moment—to see him come out, to see his pass, to see him go, to know him gone. It was going to hurt horribly. She wanted it even if it hurt her beyond everything she knew or could guess about pain.

But you mustn't be watched when things are hurting you like that—you mustn't have people looking on and chattering—it wasn't decent.

(Copyright, 1932.)

Nan's heart, torn by love for Jervis, meets worse test in tomorrow's installment.

G.O.P. Looks Toward East In Campaign

Democrats Inclined to Give More Attention to Western States

BY BYRON PRICE

Washington—Battle lines for the presidential campaign still are far from complete, but the present week has produced signs that the Republicans are turning their faces a little more definitely toward the east, while the Democrats incline a little more surely toward the west. Of course neither side has at all abandoned hope or endeavor in either east or west, but the present phases of the struggle, considered alone, show three interesting developments:

Former President Coolidge, rallying support for the Republicans, puts special emphasis on his appeal to his own industrial east.

The Democratic troubles in New York city have intensified Republican effort to capture the Empire state.

Governor Roosevelt's plans for his first long speaking trip, beginning Monday, forecast a western swing unequalled by any Democratic nominee since William Jennings Bryan.

For the moment, the most-talked of these developments probably is the Coolidge appeal, though it was by no means a surprise. In a copyrighted article in the Saturday Evening Post, Mr. Coolidge has gone the whole way of endorsing Mr. Hoover's acts collectively and in detail, of praising Vice President Curtis, and of upholding the Republican prohibition plank.

"First High Trump"

Mr. Coolidge's pronouncement, so much hoped for by Hoover leaders because of the former president's traditional popularity, is reckoned by the politicians as the first high trump to be played since the conventions. There seem good reasons for believing that Al Smith is considering the production of a Democratic trump by a statement more directly defining his support of his party ticket. Smith's full intentions, however, remain much clouded in the dust-bank of New York Democratic politics stirred up by the Roosevelt-Walkers.

The words from Northampton warmed Republican hearts to a degree where party leaders began for the first time to list publicly some of the states they expect to carry. They began with New England. That their highest hope centers in that section results partly from the reopening of some textile mills there, and partly from the embarrassment of the Democrats over the Smith domination in such important states as Massachusetts.

Roosvelt in Vermont

Governor Roosevelt's workers are not saying a great deal about New England just now, looking first to the south and west, plus New York and New Jersey, which they still insist they are sure to carry. That the governor himself has not abandoned hope in the northeast is attested by his swing this week into always-Republican Vermont, where he made some impromptu remarks and announced that Democratic polls showed great defections from

LIFE'S ODDITIES

By George Clark

"You know, Dora, what I really had in mind, when I left school, was a musical career."

Republican ranks everywhere. Republican insiders do not deny these defections as of the present time, but they say the tide is turning appreciably.

Both parties will closely examine the returns from next Monday's election in Maine, but neither side is likely to consider the figures really conclusive. Only state officials are to be elected. Maine is in an extreme corner of the country, having little in common even with some of her nearby sister states.

Besides, the state is overwhelmingly Republican; and whatever barometric value it has will be figured, not on who is elected, but on the size of the majority as compared to other years.

It will be on this basis that the politicians weigh the evidence, whatever they may say afterward for publication.

Frocks of Wool are Smart for Evening

Paris—(AP)—Woolen evening frocks are here for winter parties. They are made of featherweight wool crepes which fall in soft lines about the figure.

One of the smartest models of black wool cut along princess lines is finished with a little shoulder cape of silver sequins studded with light blue threads.

Another of pale blue wool has a simple round decolletage edged with a ruche of twisted blue and white wool strips.

Many Counties In Wisconsin Lower Budgets

Further Decreases Also Planned by County Boards Next Fall

MADISON—Detailed reports of the large cuts made in the 1932 expenses of Wisconsin counties are now being received by Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance. The reports also indicate cuts already made or about to be made in next year's budgets, which will be passed upon by the county boards at their annual meetings in November.

While some counties may not be able to show a reduction from last year's figures, when the budgets for next year are made in November, most of the clerks state there will, at least, be no increase.

The following summary is taken from the reports received and indicates how some counties have lowered expenses:

MARINETTE-CO. reduced its budget for 1932 expenses 20 per cent, or a total of $72,581.20. Over $20,000.00 represents salary cuts, $16,000.00 was saved in postponing the construction of a gymnasium at the county training school, and an additional $10,000.00 was cut from highway, work-house, and county board expenses.

SAUK COUNTY reduced its county tax collections in 1932 by $194,724.00. Of this amount $118,335.00 was accounted for by a decrease in the highway levy and $53,466.00 was due to a cut in the county levy.

TREMPLEAU-CO. has reduced highway employees 10 per cent and cut state and county construction work, by 50 per cent. Employees at its county asylum have been cut 10 per cent to 15 per cent and all improvements postponed indefinitely. County officials and deputies have been cut 15 per cent to 20 per cent.

AGENTS LET OUT

All appropriations have been cut to the limit and the county agricultural agent suspended with Trempealeau County cuts its total tax levy from $45,000.00 in 1929 to $295,000.00 in 1930, and to $169,000.00 in 1931. It expects to make a further reduction in its 1932 levy.

KENOSHA-CO. cut its budget for 1932 expenses wherever possible and has indefinitely postponed the construction of a county golf course and an addition to its sanatorium.

DANE-CO. has recently made a very material cut in the salaries of all of its officials and county employees. It will save $132,130.00 on its highway department by eliminating practically all new construction.

The county tax will, however, be increased by poor relief and other items which will offset a portion of the other savings.

RACINE COUNTY will save $4,068.00 in 1933 expenses in reductions made in the salaries of elective and appointive officers. Every other item in its budget will be reduced materially.

CALUMET COUNTY anticipates a saving of 24,000.00 through wage and salary cuts and reduced appropriations for other purposes.

WASHINGTON COUNTY reports that it cut its budget for 1932 expenses by $132,455.00. It hopes to make additional economies which will further reduce next year's expenses.

THE RUSK COUNTY BOARD has decided on the following economy program: All salaries have been cut 16-23 per cent. Office help was combined for the several county offices. It discontinued paying bounties on farm pests. Highway expenditures were curtailed. It is refusing to bond for any purpose. All town, village, city and school officers in Rusk County were notified of the action of the County Board and asked that they cooperate in reducing local expenses. The official making the report closes it

Urge Club Members To Attend Meeting

OUTAGAMIE-CO. 4-H club leaders are being urged to have their members attend a meeting at the auditorium at 8 o'clock next Tuesday evening by Gustav A. Sell, county agent. The meeting, sponsored by the Outagamie Fish and Game Protective association, will hear an address by Duane H. Kipp, superintendent of public relations of the Wisconsin Conservation commission. Mr. Sell also is urging farmers and their wives to attend the meeting.

Mr. Kipp will tell what the state is doing in reforesting waste lands; in fighting forest and marsh fires; practicing selective cutting of trees; and other matters. His talk will be illustrated with several reels of motion pictures of all sorts of wild life.

With this statement, "The nearer to home the cut is made the more noticeable it is on the tax receipt."

Report of Huge Rural Marketings in Canada Acts as Weight

BY JOHN F. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

Chicago.—(P)—Evening-up to prepare for the government crop report due after the close gave an undertone of strength to wheat in the late dealings today.

A rally in stocks and cotton had some bullish influence too on grains. On the other hand, it was estimated 20,000,000 bushels of wheat had been delivered this week at interior points in the Canadian prairie provinces, an amount more than double the quantity during the same period last year.

About midsession, wheat and corn were both at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 lower.

Corn receipts in Chicago today totaled 355 cars, compared with 434 the corresponding day last week and 58 at this time last year.

Bears contended that no sustained advance in wheat values appeared likely unless export demand for United States wheat improved, and that the logical course was selling at Chicago against purchasing at Winnipeg. Leading authorities said that whether the United States would be able to dispose of its wheat surplus on a major part of it was a question for the future, but that conditions warranting expectations of large export sales made no appeal to buyers, eastern operators locating only a few odd lots suitable for their needs, and local buyers assumed an attitude of indifference. Killing classes in all divisions were priced at unchanged figures.

Accumulating supplies of live muttons here, gradually passed control of the lamb market to the buying side. Fresh receipts of substantial proportions today, here and throughout the principal market centers resulted in lower opening bids.

Gains of about 3 points in such issues as American Can, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, and Bethlehem Steel, were about lost, Santa Fe actually closing about a point under the previous close. American Telephone and Case lost 2-point gains to close with net losses of about 1. Chemicals were under considerable pressure in the final dealings, Air Reduction, Allied Chemical and U. S. Industrial Alcohol closing about 2 lower. U. S. Steel lost a gain of 14, to close off about 1. Coppers were heavy from the start, and Anaconda and Kennecott closed nearly 2 points lower.

Curb Advances in Selective Way Overcomes Reactionary Tendencies Which Marked Early Trade

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

New York.—(P)—Overcoming reactionary tendencies which marked the early trading, the curb market today resumed its advance in a selective way on moderate volume of dealings.

Some stocks were still under the influence of selling for a reaction, but most of the leaders were lifted out of early heaviness by substantial buying. Electric Bond and Share led the way in utilities with a run up of nearly 3 points. American Gas and Electric gained more than a point, and most of the others showed fractional improvement. Commonwealth Edison was an exception, being nearly 2 points lower.

Industrials were uneven in tone. American Cyanamid "B" improved slightly on a sizeable turnover. Aluminum company of America rallied sharply from early low, recording a net gain of about a point. Great Atlantic and Pacific non-voting spurted about 7 points on small transactions. Singer Manufacturing dropped about 6 points, which wiped out its gain of the previous day.

Imperial of Canada, Gulf and Standard of Indiana showed the greatest activity in the oil group, but price changes were narrow.

Wall Street Fights

New York.—(P)—Public expenditures and excessive taxation are to be the leading subjects presented to the American Bankers Association convention at Los Angeles Oct. 3 to 6. Prominent speakers who will discuss these subjects include Prof. William B. Munro of California Institute of Technology, Governor M. S. Conner of Mississippi, and Paul Shoup, vice chairman of the Southern Pacific company.

Standard Statistics company reports that August financing totaled $105,200,000 compared with $140,500,000 in July.

Union Pacific's outlook depends on prices for farm products, says Carl Gray, president of the system. He believes it is still too early to estimate fall results.

New bond offerings this week totaled $10,852,323 against $2,500,000 last week and $73,356,000 a year ago.

F. H. Frazier, chairman of the board of Continental Baking Co., reports that the company has more than $5,500,000 on hand after purchasing sufficient 5% per cent debenture bonds of 1940 to meet sinking fund requirements to October, 1934.

Democrats in Large Rally At Depot Park

Fox and Hughes Score Both Factions in Republican Party

Kaukauna—More than 500 persons attended the Democratic rally at Depot park Thursday evening. The meeting was sponsored by the Roosevelt-Garner Democratic club.

Leo P. Fox, Chilton, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, and James Hughes, DePere, candidate for Democratic nomination for representative in congress from the eighth district, were the principal speakers. They were introduced by William Galmbacher, head of the club and a candidate for the Democratic nomination for sheriff, and Harry F. McAndrews, candidate for Democratic nomination for district attorney.

"Kohler and LaFollette have both promised to lower taxes, but they have continued to raise them," Fox said. "These two factions have been having a 'cat and dog' fight between themselves too long to the detriment of the people of Wisconsin. It is time for a change, which can be brought about by voting the Democratic ticket."

"The stalwarts and Progressives both have been making promises, but neither faction has kept them. Commissions and bureaus have increased each year until at the present time we have a grand outlay of bureaucracy in our state capital."

Mr. Fox charged the Wisconsin Public Service commission with having too much authority. Aldermen in the cities which have municipally owned electric plants should have the authority to set the rate to be paid by the customers, he said. At the present time the rate to be paid is regulated by the Wisconsin Public Service commission.

Broke Promises, Claim

The depression, taxes, prohibition, and old age pension were discussed by Mr. Hughes. "We have had 12 years of Republican leadership and promises which have landed us in our present condition," he said.

"The Republicans promised us prosperity but brought us the depression. The progress and prosperity of the country will begin again with the progress and prosperity of the farmer. All the Republican administration has done for the farmer has been to make promises with honeyed words and flattery that never came true."

"Their tax reduction was such that only a millionaire could qualify. The government of the people, by the people, and for the people" became one of the wealthy, for the privileged, and for power.

"The loss on prohibition in the last ten years would have wiped out the deficit that the country is faced with today. The Republican platform straddles this issue, while the Democratic platform meets the issue squarely and stands for repeal."

Mr. Hughes stated that he was in favor of the old age pension. He lauded Roosevelt and said that he was supporting the Democratic platform on all the issues.

Social Items

Kaukauna—Knights of Columbus Council No. 1033 will resume meetings in their clubrooms on Wisconsin-ave next Monday evening. Dr. E. Cooney, district deputy, will install the new officers. Members are expected to plan a mission this year. Plans for organization of bowling teams also will be discussed. Gordon Mulholland has been placed in charge of the bowling.

Organization of the basketball team will take place with William T. Sullivan in charge of the arrangements. Discussion of the boy scout movement sponsored by the council also is scheduled.

The Women's Missionary society of Immanuel Reformed church met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. August Seifert. Monthly business was transacted.

There will be a meeting of Odile Chapter No. 184, Order of Eastern Star, Friday evening in the Masonic hall. Monthly business will be transacted.

Holy Name society of Holy Cross Catholic church will approach communion in a body at the 7 o'clock services Sunday morning. Following the services the group will adjourn to the church basement where a business meeting and breakfast will take place.

Holy Name society of St. Mary's Catholic church will approach communion in a body at the 8:15 services Sunday morning. A breakfast will be served and a meeting will take place in the church basement following the services.

Close Registration For Voters Saturday

Kaukauna—Registration of voters for the primary election Sept. 20 will close Saturday, according to Louis C. Wolf, city clerk. Voters who are not included in the list turned over to the voting inspectors by the clerk, will have to be sworn in at the polls on Sept. 20 when they vote. Registrations will be started again after the primary for the November election. This registration also will close 10 days before the November election.

Music Schedule Is Resumed at School

Kaukauna—The usual schedule of music study for the Holy Cross school of music was started this week, according to Sister Mary Felicia, who will be in charge of the music classes again this year. Instruction in piano, violin, and voice will be given. All of the instruction is given at the music studio at 315 Denoyer.

Increase Jobs To Solve Slump, Blaine States

Concentration of Wealth Helped Bring Depression, He Says

Kaukauna—Enumerating as causes of the present economic conditions the indebtedness following the World War, the concentration of 80 per cent of the country's wealth in the hands of five per cent of the people, and mass production intensified after the World War by the introduction of machinery to take the place of hand labor, United States Senator John J. Blaine declared in a campaign talk here Thursday afternoon that the only solution for the depression was to encourage employment of more men in industries where machines have been substituted, by setting a 6-hour day for the working man.

The World War left an indebtedness of $200,000,000,000 dollars, the senator said. Our assets at that time were only valued at $380,000,000,000 and since that time this total has been decreased to make our indebtedness more than our assets. The burden of repaying that tax is being shifted on our laboring class by the men who lined their pockets with gold from fat war contracts, the senator charged.

"By concentration of wealth I mean the siphoning of 80 per cent of the country's wealth into the hands of five per cent of the people," the senator explained. "In 1930 there were 504 persons with incomes of more than one million dollars, and the incomes of these 504 men are equal to the proceeds of 500,000 bushels of wheat and 16,000,000 bales of cotton."

"The income received by these 504 men also is equal to the income from 20,000,000 dairy cows, and this total represents the entire dairy industry, along with the entire income of pork."

Favors 6-Hour Day

He also said the mass production following the introduction of machinery after the World War had further increased by the high tariff barriers recently set up through the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill, causing other countries to retaliate with similar tariffs, which in turn forced American industry to move into foreign countries to produce their product with profit. American capital was used to finance the manufacture of the American products but foreign labor and materials were substituted to further deprive the American working man of work, he charged.

His solution of the unemployment situation was to reduce the working day to a six hour basis. This would make industry see that whenever they displaced their employees with machinery they would still have to employ the same number of men because the working day had been shortened.

Advocating the immediate repeal of the Volstead act and the Eighteenth amendment, he advised state control of prohibition. He also explained the use of the new federal tax on luxuries.

Beyer, Van Hoof Talk At Socialist Meeting

Kaukauna—Roland Beyer and George Van Hoof were the speakers at an open meeting of the Kaukauna Socialists in Moose hall Thursday evening. Beyer, a student at Lawrence college, Appleton, discussed "Socialism—The Way Out" and George Van Hoof explained the failure of the old parties in the present crisis. The local Socialist party is preparing for a municipal rally next spring and will offer candidates for various municipal offices.

Charles Remley Dies Thursday Afternoon

Kaukauna—Charles Remley, 70, died at 12:30 Thursday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin De Brue on Wisconsin-ave following a three month's illness.

Born in Mazomanie Mr. Remley came to Kaukauna about 20 years ago and had lived here since. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. W. F. Shields, of Mazomanie.

The body was taken to the Fargo funeral parlors and will be taken to Mazomanie for burial.

Y. M. C. A. Secretary To Speak at Church

Kaukauna—George Werner, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Appleton, will speak at the services at the Brokaw Memorial Methodist Episcopal church and the First Congregational church Sunday. He will talk in place of the Rev. Herbert J. Lane, pastor of the two churches. The Rev. Lane is in Kenosha this week attending the Wisconsin conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. He will return here next Monday.

Butcher Changes Bill for Woman, Finds He's Loser

Kaukauna—Aloys Hopfensperger, proprietor of the Cash Meat Market on W. Wisconsin-ave, will be more careful with strange women patrons from now on. Thursday noon a fair customer walked into the meat market and made a small purchase, offering a ten dollar bill in payment. After receiving her change she told Mr. Hopfensperger she had a half dollar in her purse that could have been used without using the ten dollar bill.

She then asked for a five in return for her half-dollar and the one dollar bill and change she had received. When he placed the five dollar bill up she slid the entire amount across the counter and asked for her ten. When Mr. Hopfensperger checked over his receipts he noted she had retained one of the five dollar bills and shortchanged him. Police were notified.

Get Best Results by Proper Treatment

Proper treatment of pullets will bring the best results, according to J. B. Hayes, poultry expert with the state department of agriculture, in a bulletin to Gustav B. Sell, county agent. Mr. Hayes points out that plenty of roosting space should be provided for the birds by removing cockerels and reducing the number per house. Packing and piling them into small coops, he points out, brings heating, chilling and poor ventilation and rains start colds, roup, flu and all the related ills.

With satisfactory roosting quarters the pullets are best on the range at this time, Mr. Hayes says. Before the rains start in mid-September the pullets should be placed in the laying house.

The laying house should be cleaned thoroughly. The walls should be whitewashed. They should be changed to laying mash and they should become accustomed to the type of mash hopper that is to be used in the laying house. They should be treated for lice before being placed in the laying house.

Fascist Plan Produces 750,000 Embryo Troops

Rome (R) — Compulsory pre-military training completed its first year satisfactorily, General Teruzzi, commander of the blackshirt militia, reported to Mussolini. Some 905,474 young men were under instruction and 756,487 were declared fit to continue.

Compulsory pre-military training means that youths of 18 must drill every Sunday morning and on other days ordained by the authorities. Their regular service lasts 18 months, beginning at the age of 21.

Pastor to Deliver Four Sunday Sermons

Kaukauna—The Rev. Peter Van der Vat of the Society of the Divine Word at Peking, China, will deliver sermons at the four masses at Holy Cross Catholic church Sunday, according to the Rev. A. Garthaus, pastor. Proceeds of the Sunday offering will be used to further Chinese mission work.

Sportsmen Will Meet at Shiocton

H. W. MacKenzie to Give Address at Saturday Gathering

H. W. MacKenzie of Madison, head of the game warden department of the conservation commission, will be the principal speaker at the meeting of farmers and sportsmen Saturday evening at Hotel Northern, Shiocton. The purpose of the meeting is to outline plans for the better protection of farm lands against depredations by trespassers and for a rigid enforcement of the conservation laws this fall.

District Attorney Staidl will cooperate in every way to insure the success of the campaign.

The progress of the campaign is being watched with interest by conservation officials throughout the state, who are unanimous in their opinion that the local sportsmen are on the right track in their efforts to secure better enforcement of the conservation laws and at the same time promote more friendly relations between the city sportsman and the farmer.

Minneapolis—Some like 'em fat and some like 'em lean. Minneapolis likes its cops the latter way, and has said to the fat fellows, "reduce or resign." Now comes Mrs. Bridget

Powell with an injunction to prevent the employment of trainers and the rental of a gymnasium to the gendarmes of overweight. She contends that there is no reason that taxpayers should be obliged to pay for beauty treatments for its policemen. "It is the privilege of citizens," she set forth, "to regulate the circumference of their own stomachs." The court, in a manner of speaking, is weighing the matter.
